ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

To undertake research in an area which is highly sensitive is not an easy affair and the collection of material, facts and figures depends entirely on the courtesy and co-operation of many individuals and institutions. It was the generosity of many well-wishers and active help and encouragement of many seniors that led to the completion of this humble effort.

I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude and indebtedness to Dr. Sudesh Kumar Sharma for kindly agreeing to supervise this work. His painstaking efforts and mature guidance helped me immensely in grasping some of the most complicated issues involved in this study. I heavily drew on the reservoir of his patience and his rich and varied experience. Professor B.S. Khanna, formerly Head of the Department of Public Administration, has been a perennial source of encouragement. Dr. Satya Deva, Chairman of the Department of Public Administration, has been kind to allow me free use of the departmental resources. My most sincere thanks to them.

Shri T.N. Chaturvedi, Director, Indian Institute of Public Administration has been very considerate. As a Chief Commissioner of Chandigarh and formerly as Chief Secretary, Delhi Administration, he has an intimate touch with law and order administration. Discussions with him considerably stimulated and sharpened my own thinking on the subject. Other senior police officers who were particularly kind to spare their valuable time were Shri Bhagwan Singh Denuelia, former Inspector-General of Police, Shri C.K. Sawhney, Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Shri Krishan Kumar, Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Shri Ajaipal Singh Mann, Senior Superintendent of Police and Shri L.R. Bhagat, Superintendent of Police.

I am specially thankful to Professor S.R. Maheshwari, Indian Institute of Public Administration, Professor K. Seshadri, Jawahar Lal Nehru University, for providing some latest thinking on the subject and also for furnishing useful unpublished material. As regards statistical interpretation, I have too often disturbed Shri C.M. Behal, Programmer of the Computer Centre, Panjab University. Some of the doubts were also got cleared from Shri Prem Kumar Sharma, Superintendent of Police, Shri Arjan Dev Bhandari, Deputy Superintendent of Police and Shri R.K. Sharma, Superintendent of Police.

As regards officers and other staff, so many officials have helped me in so many ways while writing this thesis that were I to mention all by names, it should seem tedious-some only ungracious. I shall, therefore, mention none by name, but express my most sincere thanks to all collectively especially to those who extended their unstinted co-operation in answering questions often somewhat remote from their immediate preoccupations. To the citizens in the non-police sample, I am particularly obliged for their kindness and co-operation.

I also wish to place on record my deep sense of gratitude to the Librarians of Panjab University, Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi, Punjab Civil Secretariat, Bureau of Police Research and Development, Ministry of Home Affairs.

I must owe special thanks to Shri Sham Kaushish, Mrs. Savita Chopra, Shri R.K. Jain, Dr. M.L. Saini for carefully going through the draft. I am equally indebted to Shri O.P. Gupta, Librarian, Panjab University Evening College, Chandigarh for checking the Tables and Bibliography.

A lot of work has been done, and done with paternal spirit by my father. My wife had been patient and a life companion in the true sense of the term. She, more than any body else, richly deserves a share of whatever pleasure and satisfaction attend the completion of this work. However, in undertaking this study, no financial assistance could be secured from any quarter with the result that the meagre resources available were not only stretched but thoroughly exhausted. The completion of this work is the only compensation.

Needless to say that whereas the knowledge and guidance of all these benefactors should have greatly enriched and improved the quality of the product, the shortcomings which might have crept in are all due to my intellectual limitations. I, alone, am responsible for all the statements and conclusions drawn and the study does not reflect the official opinion of any individual or group.

D.A.V. College, Chandigarh.
