ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It gives me great pleasure to place on record my sincere thanks to several persons and friends who provided support in completing this thesis.

I am deeply indebted and grateful to my supervisor Dr. G.K. Karanth, Professor and Head of Department, Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, without whose guidance and co-operation, my thesis would not have been possible. His patience, encouragement and reception to ideas on the subject made this work more valuable.

I am grateful to the Institute for Social and Economic Change, for the unstinted support given by the faculty, student community and administrative staff during the entire period of my work.

It is my privilege to express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. A.R. Vasavi, Fellow, National Institute of Advanced Studies, for giving her valuable time in discussing various research themes of mutual interest. I thank Professor Alakh N. Sharma, Editor, Indian Journal of Labour Economics for his generosity and constant encouragement. I must express my gratitude to Ms. Mary Johnson, Director, International Labour Office, for her patience, understanding and in motivating me to complete my work.

I am most grateful and indebted to the panchayat members of Maldare, Chennayana Kote and Siddapur for sharing their beliefs, lives and experiences with me. I would like to place on record my affection to C.A. Subbaih, Geeta and Achi for adopting me and my daughter as members of their family. This thesis would not have been possible without the insights of courageous and forthright women like Chinnamma, Yamuna and dedicated panchayat members like C.A. Subbaih, who believe that change in the political arena is necessary to cause changes in people's every day life. My stay at Kodagu district during my field work was a milestone in my life as it also enlarged my family and now I have two friends Piush Antony and Seeta Veeraghanta who made my stay comfortable.

I thank my fellow students, especially Ms. Piush Antony for her constant help, motivation and support. I must express my affection for my ISEC friends, particularly Bhanumurthy and Mini for tolerating my constant demands on their time for information.

I thank my family for supporting and stimulating my inclination to study. This research would not have been possible without the physical support given by the women in my family - my mother Prema Vasudevan, my aunt Radha Padmanabhan, my mother-in-law Lila Ramabadran and my grandmother V.K. Lakshmi. I am also grateful to my father-in-law, husband and children, Ananth and Shreya for very often tolerating an absentee wife and mother. Lastly, I would like to express my gratitude to my father Vasudevan who has been a role model and an ideal to me.

Bangalore, September 2001