ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Often words are too weak a mode of expressing one's inner feelings, especially the sense of indebtedness. The same difficulty is experienced by me in expressing the deep sense of gratitude and indebtedness, which I owe to my all respected teachers.

I express my deepest sense of gratitude and thanks to my most humble and worthy Guru, Dr. Upinder Kumar Tikku, M.Sc. (Hons. Sch.) Physics, M.Lib.Sc., Ph.D. in Library Science (U.S.A.), Reader, Department of Library Science, Panjab University, Chandigarh, who has been very kind and generous in guiding and helping me throughout the study with keen interest and encouraging attitude. I owe to Dr. Tikku, the personal debt that a pupil owes to a teacher.

I am particularly conscious of my indebtedness to the other teachers and staff, especially Shri G.C. Bansal, Chairman of Deptt. of Library Science, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for their timely help in preparation of this research project.

However, without the detailed information received from the library schools in India and United Kingdom, through a comprehensive questionnaire, this study would have been impossible. I wish to record here my great appreciation to the heads of the library schools in India and United Kingdom for their cooperation. I am equally grateful to the librarians and assistant librarians of both the countries who took time to comment on my numerous inquiries.
I also owe thank to Shri Rashpal Malhotra, Director of Centre for Research in Rural and Industrial Development, for his continuous encouragement and cooperation.

Sincere thanks are due to all those authors whose authentic creations I have consulted and quoted to give my ideas a final shape and make this work authentic.

I would like to acknowledge the kind understanding I received from my all family members during some orduous moments at this academic efforts.

Special thanks are due to Sh. K.P. Nanda and Sh. Ramesh Sailigal for their valuable help during the course of this study.

I find no words to express my deep gratefulness to Ms. Reena Singhi for giving me valuable assistance in checking each reference against this original source.

Last but not least, Shri Satish Arora who with unflagging zeal and interest typed the complete manuscript.

Despite all the care, there may be errors and limitations in this study. They are, of course, the responsibility of the author.
