A WORD OF GRATITUDE

It is universally acknowledged that every Ph.D. dissertation owes a great deal to a number of persons who act midwives to its birth. My thesis too is no exception. The work, initially laborious and heavy, turned out to be "a joy for ever" when it approached completion. What "makes my labours pleasures", to quote Shakespeare, is the nostalgic remembrance of those who helped immensely in my research venture.

It is my sacred duty, first of all, to express my sincerest gratitude to Dr B.L. Bansal, Professor, Department of Commerce and Business Management, Panjab University, Chandigarh, India for the able and illuminating guidance I received from him at all stages of my thesis. From his clear insight into the fundamentals of the problem as well as his incisive and perceptive criticism I have immensely profited. Any formal acknowledgement of indebtedness to Professor Bansal, however elegantly expressed, cannot be better than in the words of J.B. Massieu, "Gratitude is the memory of the heart".

With the same sense of gratification, I would like to express that, that I have been able to persist in my work owes much to the beneficent care and help, lively encouragement and moral support so ungrudgingly and lavishly extended to me by Dr T.N. Kapoor, Professor and Dean, Faculty of Business Management and Commerce, Dr B.N. Mehrotra, Professor and Chairman, Dr S.D. Tripathi, Professor, Dr S.P. Singh, Reader,
Dr M.L. Tandon, Reader, Dr C.P. Babu, Lecturer and Shri Ambresh
Kumar, Lecturer, Department of Commerce and Business Management, Panjab University, Chandigarh.

Dr Adolph Matz, Professor Emeritus of Accounting,
University of Pennsylvania, the U.S.A., Dr R.J. Chambers,
Professor of Accounting, University of Sydney, Australia,
Dr Shin Kichi Minemura, Professor of Accounting, Keio University, Japan, Mr J.B. Methven, Assistant Director of Accounting and Auditing Research, The Institute of Chartered Accountants of Scotland, Dr Gyan Chandra, Professor of Accounting, Miami University, the U.S.A., Dr K.K. Das, Professor, Department of Management, Howard University, Washington, D.C.,
The U.S.A., Dr H.L. Dhingra, Professor of Finance and Management Science, University of Saskatchewan, Canada,
Professor G.D. Roy (Retd), Department of Commerce, Calcutta
University, Dr M. Habibullah, Professor of Accounting, Shri S.N.
Ghosh, Chairman, Department of Accounting, Dacca University,
Bangladesh and Shri Prem Raj Pant, Lecturer in Business Administration, Tribhuvan University, Nepal helped me design the primary layout of the work at its nascent stage. At later stages too, some of them helped me a lot. I am deeply beholden to all of them.

I would seek to express my profound gratitude to Dr N. Bhattacharya, Professor of Statistics, Dr Somir Guho Roy,
My gratitude to Dr B. Ghosh, Professor of Chemical Engineering, Dr A.R. Agrawal, Lecturer in Mathematics and Dr B.N. Ghosh, Lecturer in Economics, Panjab University, Chandigarh who helped me immensely to bring this project to fruition, is inexpressibly deep.

Dr D.C. Saxena, Reader, Department of English, Panjab University, whenever I met him with problems of language improvement, very gladly and with great interest dissipated my doubts. I acknowledge indebtedness to him.

I am extremely grateful to Shri Tarun Kanti Nandi and Shri Naresh Sharma of Regional Computer Centre, Chandigarh for graciously conducting a programme to analyse the data. Shri Prem Kumar Garg, a promising and brilliant alumnus at the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India and Shri Upendra Gautam, Research Scholar, Department of Public Administration, Panjab University, gave me the benefit of their trenchant criticism and constructive suggestions.

I recall with due deference all authors and professors, oriental and occidental, whose articles, books, dissertations and letters I have consulted. I should put on record my grateful acknowledgement to those reputed accounting bodies at home and abroad who took pains to mail information of great importance, as also those industrial concerns and sector corporations of Bangladesh who furnished data to feed my research study. I am thankful to the librarians and assistants of Commerce Faculty library, Mathematics and Statistics Departments' library and the central library of Panjab University, the Delhi School of Economics library, The Institute of Chartered Accountants of India library, Calcutta, the Dacca University library, the Institute of Business Administration library, Dacca and the Magura Government College library, Jessore, Bangladesh for their whole-hearted co-operation.

But for the unstinted support and unfailing inspiration of my revered brother, Major-General M, Majid-ul-Haq (Retired) and the nomination given to me by the Government of the People's Republic of Bangladesh as also for the substantial financial assistance by the Government of India, the present study would not have seen the light of day. I feel deeply grateful to my distinguished friends, Professor Sekendar Ali, Professor Pijush Kanti Dutta and Shri Rakhal Chandra Biswas who did a lot to look after my family during my stay in India for this work. My special thanks are due to my affectionate student, Mrs Bharati Ghosh who looked after my material needs and comforts while I was with them for collection of data in Khulna zone, Bangladesh.
In Chandigarh, during my research work, I was befriended by many research fellows of Bangladesh, India, Nepal and other countries whose association I will always cherish. I must thank Mr. B.S. Cheema for he prepared the typescript with meticulous care.

My deepest debt is no less due to my mother and wife who, apart from cheerfully assuming many family responsibilities including those of my children, endured patiently the long spells of my absence and rescued me from lapsing into inertia and lassitude.

If many more persons remain unacknowledged, I can only plead in extenuation, in Keatsian vein:

Uttered names are sweet
But those unuttered are sweeter.

(DILIP KUMAR SEN)

CHANDIGARH
Dated: 7/1/83