ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am deeply indebted to my esteemed teacher Professor Gurdev Singh Gosal, Head of the Department of Geography, Panjab University, Chandigarh for his able guidance at every stage in the preparation of this thesis. I have freely drawn upon his valuable insight into the conceptual as well as informative aspects of Agricultural Geography of Punjab.

I owe special gratitude to Dr. Gopal Krishan, Lecturer, Department of Geography, Panjab University, Chandigarh, and Dr. (Mrs.) Swarnjit Mehta, Reader, Department of Geography, Punjab University, Patiala for carefully going through the manuscript and making numerous suggestions which have gone a long way in improving its contents.

Thanks are also due to my other colleagues in the Department: Dr. R.C. Chandna for his untiring help in compiling the bibliography and for volunteering help at all stages; to Shri Mehar Singh for his expertise and cartographic mastery in designing and drafting the maps. The cartographic section of this thesis owes much to the sincere and wholehearted efforts and the drafting skill put in by Mrs. Kusum Gupta.

I would also be failing in my duty if I do not express my thanks to various government officials especially Shri Gulbahar S. Gill, P.C.S., and Shri Ram Lal, P.C.S., for all the co-operation they extended in the collection of data.
