ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am grateful to my teacher Professor Dr. A. B. Mukerji, Geography Department, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for suggesting the topic of the thesis and for careful reading through the text and for supervising the thesis in all its aspects.

I have no words to thank enough my husband Dr. N. C. Rao, for encouraging me, providing me the required moral and financial support, and for accompanying me in conducting fieldwork.

I am thankful to Professor Dr. Mrs. Swarnjit Mehta, Chairperson, Department of Geography, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for providing me with a room accommodation and kindly permitting me to use the library facilities and secure the required administrative support.

The University Grants Commission, New Delhi, has had me in deep debt for awarding the Teachers' Fellowship for a period of three years.

Lastly, I must express my gratitudes to the innumerable villagers who unmindful of their own domestic and field chores gladly replied to my questionnaires and voluntarily provided additional information.
