First of all, I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to the ALMIGHTY GOD, for bestowing me with everything, and because of whose grace I could accomplish my research task with success.

I express a profound sense of gratitude for my venerated and affable guide, Professor Bhupinder Singh Bhoop, Dean Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences and Co-ordinator of UGC Center of Advanced Studies in Pharmaceutical Sciences for realizing and quenching my desire for research. In fact, it is his valued suggestions, precious guidance, generous help, constructive criticism, and benevolent attention, without which it would not have been possible for me to execute this novel project efficiently and successfully.

There are hardly many words for Professor O. P. Katare, whose timely advice and immense assistance enabled me to realize my dreams of performing and delivering my acumen of research. In fact, his peaceful and benevolent nature has assisted me many times both personally and professionally.

I am thankful to Professor V.R. Sinha, Chairman, University Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences, Panjab University, for providing all the requisite facilities for carrying out my research work. Furthermore, it is very hard to explain in words during the innumerous occasions when he actively supported me, esp., during my mother’s operation.

It is very heartening to mention in special words about Dr Rishi Kapil, my colleague and brother-like. I learnt a lot about the functioning of University as well as UIPS from him during our PhD days. Not only this, even during my hard times he was always there besides me. Still today I am missing him!!!

Also, there are three PhD fellows (Mr Neeraj Dogra, Mr Jitendriya Mishra and Mr Chhanda Charan Danta) who have supported me both on and off the department. These three fellows not only let me understand a few of the techniques they knew but also supported me during my sojourn of PhD.
