ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I first thank God Almighty for giving me the opportunity and strength to pursue this research work, and for providing me a very supportive parents, a sister and a brother. Without their encouragement, support and patient wait this work would not have seen the light of the day.

I am grateful to Dr. K.R. Shanmugam, my Supervisor, for his constant encouragement, valuable and able guidance and full co-operation in completing this work. Right from the beginning, he had been the leading light in shaping the intellectual content of this work. In his busy academic duties he always found time to give effective guidance at all stages of this work, which helped me to proceed with the work smoothly. His critical comments on each chapter, and his expertise in empirical research and making things simpler and effective have had a lasting influence on this work. Above all, without his unquestionable integrity, sincerity and quest for perfection, which became increasingly evident with the progress of this work, this work would not have taken this form and shape. To him I express my deep sense of gratitude.

I am equally grateful to Dr. Raja J. Chelliah, Chairman, Madras School of Economics for his general guidance, encouragement, and valuable comments and suggestions on the draft chapters of this work. As a special invitee to the Doctoral Committee meetings he always provided invaluable inputs on the finer elements of sales taxation, which helped to enrich this study to a great extent. Despite his hectic schedules, he was always willing to spare his precious time for holding discussions all of which were highly rewarding. He was also instrumental in making my visits to Department of Commercial Taxes of Southern states a very useful exercise. In fact, it was his name and fame that sold everywhere. To him also I express my deep sense of gratitude.

I am also thankful to the members of my Doctoral Committee Dr. Paul P. Appasamy, Director of Madras School of Economics and Dr. K. Shanthi, Professor, University of Madras for their encouragement, positive attitude and valuable comments.
With pleasure and gratitude I express my thanks to Dr. M. Govinda Rao, Director, National Institute of Public Finance and Policy (NIPFP), New Delhi for his encouragement, general guidance, invaluable suggestions and remarks at various stages of this work. His striking comments in the course of my discussion with him at several times and his candid and positive approach have definitely boosted my confidence when things looked impossible at one stage. Thanks are also due to Dr. Jose Sebastian, Faculty, Centre for Taxation Studies (CTS), Thiruvananthapuram for his encouragement and for providing me with some highly useful back volumes Sales Tax Act/Law Publications and for his wholehearted help to collect information from CTS library.

I am also thankful to Dr. G. Mythili, Dr. Brinda Viswanathan, Dr. Vinish Kathuria and Dr. G.S. Haripriya, faculty members of Madras School of Economics, for their comments. I remember with grate respect the late Prof. S. Ambirajan for his encouragement at the early stages of this work.

During my visits to Southern states I was greatly benefited from the discussions with various officials in the Department of Commercial Taxes of all the states. I am grateful to each one of them for sparing their time amidst their busy official duties to have discussions and providing me with data. Special thanks are due to Mr. S. Savarkar (IAS Retired) for helping me to clarify several intricate aspects of sales taxation.

At the time of my visits to various libraries as part of my research work, I benefited richly from the library staffs of NIPFP, Delhi School of Economics, Jawaharlal Nehru University, Institute of Economic Growth, Indian Institute of Management (Calcutta), Institute for Social and Economic Change, Madras Institute of Development Studies and Centre for Development Studies. I thank them all.

My special thanks are to Mr. Kannappan for making my stay at Pondicherry a smooth affair and helping me to get invaluable data on sales tax rates of Pondicherry. I also thank Ms. Geetha, Ms. Bama, Ms. Girija, and Ms. Saraswathy for their computer related technical assistance. I also extend my gratitude to Ms. Tara Ganasen, Personal Secretary to Chairman, Madras School of Economics, for helping me to approach Dr. Raja J. Chelliah whenever it required.
With pleasure, I express my sincere thanks to my fellow researcher Ms. Leena Mary Eapen for sparing her time for helping me in innumerable ways and for her healing touch and encouragement whenever I faced troubles related to this work and life.

I will be failing in my duty of acknowledging people if I do not make a mention of all my excellent teachers at Nesamony Memorial Christian College, Marthandam and S.T. Hindu College, Nagercoil who all along encouraged me in many ways to pursue Doctoral research.

I thank my close friends Mr. Gopa Kumar and Mr. Kannan and many other well-wishers for their constant encouragement and help. My special note of appreciation and thanks are to my uncle Dr. T.K. Nair for encouraging me to pursue Ph.D. course.

And finally, I acknowledge with thanks Madras School of Economics for offering the Research Fellowship and other logistic supports throughout my Ph.D. programme.
