The biggest realization towards the end of this research and thesis writing journey is that it seems like a new beginning. This wonderful journey would not have been possible without the support and help of so many great people who never let me get off the hook especially during the times when I felt low. And, believe me, those weren’t rare occasions. First and foremost, I am deeply indebted to Professor K. Rangarajan, my research guide, who not only guided me through the whole process but also provided me all the insights and exposure required towards completing this journey of intellectual growth. Without his supervision and encouragements, this journey would have not been possible. He not only discovered the researcher in me but also pushed me to get deeper insights of the subject, its practical relevance and in developing in-depth understanding of the methodologies involved. He also taught me how to go beyond the obvious and look behind the problems. I am very thankful to Dr. Rakesh Mohan Joshi (Professor and Chairperson) for his guidance and support towards completing this study. He has been an inspiration and had always motivated me to move forward. I am thankful to Dr. (Mrs.) Vijaya Katti (Professor and Chairperson), Dr. (Mrs.) D. Sunitha Raju (Professor and Chairperson), Dr. Biswajit Nag, Dr. O.P. Wali, Dr. Debashis Chakraborty and Dr. Tamanna Chaturvedi for their constructive feedback and comments during the PhD progress seminars that were conducted at regular intervals. They also provided me with lots of inputs and suggestions which really helped me in getting a clear understanding of the path to follow and in presenting my things in a better manner. I wish to thank the entire IIFT PHD PD, administration and the library staff (both at Delhi and Kolkata centres) for their support and cooperation.

I could not have completed my thesis without the help and support from colleagues at work, who helped me to take out time for the research either by sharing my work load or helping me in putting my act together for the research. I am thankful to them also for sharing practical insights in the area of package software services. I am really thankful particularly to Mr. Nitin Kaushik, Mr. Amul Lalwani, Mr. Rahul Kochhar, Mr. Harish Kumar, Mr. Mahesh Bhat, Mr. Bhavaish Bhatija and Mr. Manan Chandan. I thank all the industry experts who took out time from their busy schedule for the in-depth interviews and for sharing their vast practical experiences and observations on the phenomenon under study. Without their support it would not have been possible to achieve the objectives of the study.

The biggest challenge for a case study based research is to first get the concurrence from the case study organization to participate and then to get the commitment from the assigned people to dedicate required time. I have been extremely lucky in this regard and would like to thank the three companies that kindly agreed to be part of this research. I cannot go ahead without thanking some of the individuals from these organizations who made it happen. They are Mr. Sanjay Singh, Mr. Ajay Jadia, Mr. Sudeep Saxena, Mr. Satish Suri and Mr. Nagesh Bezawada.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank my family members for their tremendous support without which this thesis would not have been completed: to my parents for being a constant source of inspiration; to my elder brother and mentor, Santosh Tiwari for where I am today; to my wife Tulika for always standing behind me in this long journey; to my brother in law, Dr. Alok Kumar Pandey and sister Smriti Pandey for continuously motivating me; to my father in law for always checking that I am not losing track; to my brother in law, Satyasheel and sisters in law, Yuthika Shukla and Mahima Pandey for bearing me during my several visits to Delhi and Kolkata respectively for the research work. I am extremely fortunate to have such people around me.
