6. Sensitivity analysis is to be performed by applying fastest and slowest progression curves determined by time dependent progression for each risk category.

7. The estimates of future incidence at different sites and sampling techniques for estimating site-specific incidence will be attempted.

8. More studies are needed using different risk categories and population age-sex structure separately to get reliable estimates.
REFERENCES

