ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The present study is a humble attempt to document and analyse a fascinating phase in inter-state relations in South India during the late Medieval period with a particular reference to two regions namely Mysore and Tamil Nadu.

In this task I am obliged to my guide and supervisor Dr. Y. H. Nayakwadi, Senior lecturer in the department of Studies in History, Manasagangotri, University of Mysore, Mysore who was kind enough to guide me up to this date. He is a young scholar with wide knowledge in Medieval South India. I express my gratitude to him for his useful guidance in completing my thesis on time. I cannot forget the concern he showed towards me, apart from the guidance.

I also owe thanks to Prof. K. Shivanna, Retd. Professor of History University of Mysore, Mysore, initiated me into research and encouraged me until his retirement in 2002. I am grateful to him for his valuable suggestions.

I thank the following for their help in my research work. My father Prof. S.R. Chandra Raj Urs, Retd. Professor of History for his unending inspirations and blessings, and my mother, my sister, and my wife for their continuous cooperation.

I thank the Head of the Department of History, Manasagangotri, Mysore, for helping me in processing my official papers and also permitting me to use the departmental library.
I thank the Librarian, University of Mysore, Mysore, Director, Department of Indian Epigraphy, Deputy Director, Palace Archives, Mysore, Director, Karnataka State Archives, Bangalore, Librarian, Mythic Society, Bangalore, Commissioner, The Tamil Nadu State Archives, Chennai, Librarian, Madras University, Chennai, Librarian Connemara Library, Chennai, Librarian, Pondicherry University, Pondichery, Prof. Subbarayalu, Tamil University, Tanjore, Librarian, Bharati Dasan University, Tirichinapally, Librarian, Madurai Kamaraj University, Madurai, Librarian, Public Library, Coimbatore, for permitting to use the fact facilities in their institutions.
