Acknowledgement

It is pleasant duty for me to acknowledge the kindness of my teachers and friends from whose help and advice I have benefited. It is a rare obligation to express my gratitude to my supervisor Dr Sajal Nag, who has taken tremendous pain, understanding and care to explain several aspects of this work and with which he examined my work. This work could see light of the day only because of his constant encouragement and guidance particularly when I have embarked on to take up this work, which was completely new to me.

I am much obliged to my colleagues in the Department, Prof. J K Samal, Dr R K De and Mr Th R Tiba for insightful discussion and for providing me opportunity to take this work to logical end, by sharing my teaching assignments. I am also grateful to Prof. R R Dhamala for her keen interest in my work.

My thanks are due to the Assam University Library, Departmental Library in History, AMU, Aligarh, National Archives, New Delhi, National Library, Calcutta, NEHU Library, Shillong and others for providing me infrastructural facilities.

This work owes a lot to my closest friends Orus Ilyas and Jiban who have tirelessly goaded me to finish the work at the earliest. My thanks are also due to my friends Mujeebur Rahman, Shamananda Bhattacharjee and Pinak for their encouragement. I also appreciate the efforts of Pinak, who has taken great pain in typing the manuscript.
I also acknowledge the assistance provided by the staff members of the Department of History, Assam University specially Mr Niranjan Das, who has taken care of smallest things.

I am grateful to my parents, brother and sister who always stood behind me during the course of this work.

While my debts, both general and specific are many in an venture of this sort, I accept the sole responsibility for any errors that might have inadvertently crept into this work.
