Acknowledgement

Amongst many economic and political developmental activities the country is deeply committed to the factors of adult education, primary education and poverty alleviation, which are few of the important vehicles of economic growth and are being pursued assiduously.

As a student I have always been keenly interested in primary education of children and the very attempt to explore deep into the system followed in our country has resulted in the submission of this thesis, and this work would not have been possible had it not been for the valuable support and guidance I had received from many and I am indebted to Dr.J.Ramesh Sundar, my guide and supervisor whose valuable assistance has lot to do in my effort to fulfill this task.

I am also grateful to Dr.Alexander Mantramurti, Principal, Madras Christian College, Tambaram, for his encouragement to undertake this assignment. I am extremely indebted to my friend Mr.R.Sridhar, whose constant help, support and technical guidance has resulted in this voluminous work.

My special thanks to Mr.Rajarathnam, District Education Officer, DPEP, Dharmapuri, for extending timely assistance to complete my project and to Mr.Raman and Mr.Varadharajan, consultants DPEP, Chennai, for providing valuable inputs and necessary statistical data connected with my project.

I also acknowledge the sincere assistance rendered by Mr.R.Chandrashekar for his meticulous data analysis and my professor Mr.Subramaniam for his valuable inputs.

My due respects and thanks to Dr.V.K.Padmanaban, for his inspiring support to initialize this project work.

My special thanks to Aarti for helping me prepare the research tools and providing valuable suggestions whenever required.

A project of this nature would not have been successful had it not been for the total support of my family especially my husband Mr.Natesan Subramaniam and my daughter Anusha who were always a source of inspiration, my friends and well-wishers.
