ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The successful completion of this doctoral research work gives me the opportunity to express my deep sense of gratitude to my esteemed mentor Professor Keya Sengupta, Dean, School of Social Sciences, Assam University, Silchar. I owe a great deal to her constant support, guide, encouragement and good wishes without which the work would have remained incomplete.

I gratefully acknowledge the academic inspiration and valuable suggestions received from my reverend teachers Dr. Niranjan Roy, Prof. N. B. Dey, Dr. S. Das and others at Assam University, Silchar, Prof. R. Prasad, Director, Icfai National College, and Prof. Koshi Vargese, V. C. of Icfai University, Mizoram during my research work.

I am beholden to my parents, my grandmother Sham-soon-nessa and my respected uncles Alhaj Kiamuddin, Kutub Uddin, Faizuddin Ahmed and Mr. Imad Uddin for their special care, constant mental and financial support in academic pursuit.

I am thankful to various Government Offices such as Directorate of Economics and Statistics, Guwahati, Assam State Agricultural Marketing Board, District Agricultural Offices, Central Statistical Organization, and Libraries of various academic institutions like Assam (Central) University, Silchar, North Eastern Hill University, Shillong, Gauahati University, Guwahati, Institute of Chartered Financial Analysts of India, Indian Council of Social Science Research, Shillong, who gladly allow me to examine their official records, books and other materials related to my research work.

I express my sincere thanks to the respondents belonging to Barak Valley who rendered necessary assistance and cooperation during my field survey.

Finally, I wish to express my special thanks to many researchers of Economics in India and abroad whose works have been consulted and drawn upon in the course of research. The necessary helps and encouragement received from my colleagues and friends are gratefully acknowledged.
