ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

In the path towards this research I have been accompanied and supported by many people who have directly or indirectly contributed to the presented ideas and understanding gained. It is a pleasant aspect that I have now the opportunity to express my gratitude for all of them.

The first person I would like to thank is my supervisor Professor Dr. Keya Sengupta, Department of Economics, Assam University. I have been associated to her since 1994 when I started my MA course. During these years I have known her as a sincere and principle-centered person. Her passion towards work and integral view on research and her mission for providing 'only high-quality work and not less' has made a deep impression on me. I owe her lots of gratitude for having me shown the right direction towards accomplishing this work. Her being an excellent supervisor, I am really glad that I have come to get know such a person in my life.

I would like to thank all members of PhD committee who monitored my work and took effort right from the making of Research Proposal to the final Report and providing me with valuable suggestions on various aspects of this thesis. Thanks to Shri Niranjan Roy, Shri Sumansh Dutta, Shri A. Sen, Shri D. Sahu, and Shri S. Das- faculty members of Department of Economics, Assam University for their valuable comments and suggestions they have put during various progress meetings and seminars.

I am thankful to Shri H.Ghose Roy, former Principal of the college for his cooperation during the initial period of the work. Thanks are due to Shri A.Talukdar, Shri Ranjit Paul, and my other colleagues at Public College of Commerce, Dimapur for encouraging me a lot during my research. Thanks also go to Shri Bhabesh Saha, Library Incharge and Shri Amrendra Ghose Roy, Library Assistant for providing me lots of information and Shri Dilip Paul and Shri Imlitemjen for getting printed all questionnaires. I am especially indebted to Shri Abhijit Chakraborty, Acting Principal whose cooperation, advice and suggestions during the period of research have been commendable.

I am grateful to Head G.Bs Shri Ghonito, Nihokhu, Niuland and Shri Viyito S. Holo, Hovishe, Niuland for allowing me to investigate households in their respective villages. I really appreciate the helping hand lent by my students Tongpangkokba Ao, Tiyakaba Nayak, Tara Chand, Sashikant Chowhan, Akok N Walling, P. Engo Konyak, and S. Wanmei in collecting information from sample households. I also thank all respondents who participated in informal discussion and cooperated in providing desired information. My thanks are also due to all officials of J.N.U., Central Library who have cooperated in providing substantial information on the subject. I am also grateful to NABARD, Dimapur branch, NSCB Ltd., SBI and Directorate of Economics & Statistics, Nagaland for their cooperation in getting information. I thank all researchers and authors whose work I have consulted for accomplishing the present work.

This work is a dedication to my mother late Smt. Lakshmi Dutta who has left no stone unturned in upbringing me even in times of crisis. I am grateful to my family members, father Shri Sasankha Sehkar Dutta, brother Pradeep, sisters Uma and Anju who were very supportive and encouraging during the whole period. I am very grateful to my wife Mili and my eldest daughter Aakanksha for their love and relentless patience during the PhD period. One of the most promising phases during this research was the birth of our second daughter Alaina alias Keya, who provided an additional and joyful dimension to our life.

My gratitude shall remain unfinished if I forget to thank Almighty whose blessings have carried me onward in the present endeavour.

Subhendu Dutta,
