ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

As I start to write this piece, the last three years of this program flash to mind. It really has been a long time. I have interacted with several people, have been exposed to many subjects, during this period and have gained tremendously from my experiences at Assam University. The biggest learning is of course MIS, my understanding of the field and how one can contribute to the discipline. I owe this to my thesis supervisor Dr Brajesh Kumar. I thank him for all the support encouragement and motivation that he has provided during these years. I thank him all his valuable comments and inputs during revision of the thesis drafts. The way he manages to present complex concepts in simple words, amazes me. It just show what a strong foundation means. It has been a privilege to work with such a great mind. He has taught me what is MIS as a discipline is and how we as a researchers, are responsible to take the discipline in the right direction. He is an excellent and an enthusiastic teacher.

As this journey comes to an end, I feel it is important to thank a few other people who have been part of this experience and have always come forward to help me whenever I needed, it is difficult to thank them all in so few lines here.

I would like to thank Prof N.B.Dey, Prof D.K.Pandiya, and Dr P.J.Goswami for their guidance when the thesis was taking shape and during the thesis proposal defense and for introducing me to different area of research during the course and for their support thought.

I am deeply indebted to my university and IIMC for its library, its databases, the computer lab and other important resources which facilitate the dissertation work.

I would not have known what it means to separate the mind from oneself and watch it think.

Thank Assam University; I believe I am more in touch with myself today.

I don’t have words to express my thanks to my friends at Assam University, my seniors and my juniors. I want to thank them all from the core of my heart for the love and care they bestowed on me at every phase of this work, Pintuda,
Manasda, Prsenjit, Rajeev, Ashim, Sourav, Bishu and Srabani etc - I am caring with me a bit of each one of you.

My gratitude to my interviewees, from the different area who participated in the interviews during the data collection and other field work.

Finally, I have to thank the most important people in my life. I thank my parents for their patience and support throughout, I have put them through all kinds of tension during these years. No words to thank them for their encouragement and for letting me study and shape my career as I wanted. Feel sad though that none of my grandparents are here to see the end of this journey. I know their blessings are there with me, wish they too were around.

Sisters, have also been around to hear me crib for something or the others. They are the biggest stress relieves for me 😊, followed by friends. I would also like to thank Bhabiji who always given me inspiration and mental support in whole of my work.

Last but not the least it is god’s grace that made this study possible.
