ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I feel honour to extend my sincere thanks to Professor A. M. Mattoo, Ex-Director Centre of Central Asian Studies, University of Kashmir. Dr. Mattoo deserves my thanks beyond the scope of my weak vocabulary. It is due to his immense confidence reposed in a neo scholar's raw talent, his easy approach, creative guidance and inspiration, which provided intellectual stimulation and emotional support for the research work. His magnanimity and geniality made my stay at University campus possible. Provided easy access to libraries, research Centres, and over all peaceful academic atmosphere of the University campus.

The present thesis was conducted under the supervision of Dr. G. M. Malik, Professor, P. G. Department of Education. I express my immense gratitude to him. His long experience with students and researchers, expert guidance and criticism, technical acumen for research methodology lead to the present piece of work. In addition many sincere thanks are due to Prof. Gulshan Majid, Director, Centre of Central Asian Studies (C. C. A. S.) for providing very helpful comments on general aspects of research work. His typical approach was an inspiration for inculcating a research temperament demanding hard work and patience. I am indebted to the staff member and teachers of C. C. A. S. who always provided every possible help and encouragement for the completion of this thesis. Theirs have been a friendly easy approach.

My thanks are due to all member of C. C. A. S. Mr. Khazir Mohammad Magray has been of immense help and emotional support. His genial temperament and easy approach to formal intricacies of the research setup, relieved me from many mind boggling inconveniences of formal administrative acrobatics. I wan to thank Mr. Mukhtar Ahmad, Librarian, C. C. A. S. whose help within the confines of C. C. A. S. library and beyond helped in accumulation of research material. I am indebted to the staff member Allama Iqbal Library, members of Research Library Choglamsar Leh for their keen interest in my research problem, help and cooperation.

The data for this project was collected from sample village of Khurboo (Kargil) and Dahl (Leh) against the backdrop of Kargil war. I am especially indebted to Mr. Rouf Ahmad Zargar, young, handsome Wildlife Warden Leh his staff members. Anchuk, a devoted Buddhist, Wildlife Ranger and Gulzar Ahmad, Ex District Social Welfare Officer Kargil deserves special thanks. Thanks are due for the cooperation and help of District Education Officer Kargil and District Cultural Officer Kargil. Their technical guidance made it possible to translate the research tools into communicable Urdu language. Besides, their immense support for the administration of the same in the field work. However, it would be injustice not to thank the respondents – the handsome brave respondents of Kharboo and docile flower loving respondents of Dakh village.

Further I am indebted to Mr. Nazir Ahmad Doshab, Projectionist, State Resource Centre, University of Kashmir whose expertise, aesthetics and an obsession for orderly arrangement of minor and major aspect of research report lead to the present piece of research work. His expertise and patience was repeatedly tested during late night computerization in the holy month of Ramdhan.

During the study I have received open hearted support from my friends and colleagues. Aijaz Ahmad deserves a special mention for financial and emotional support. To pay thanks is to belittle his magnanimity and stature. Tahira, my wife took care of financial and domestic affairs, besides providing emotional support. Their help and unbounded confidence in my limited capabilities can always be recalled but not repaid. During compilation, my four year old daughter Hajirah shared one corner of my desk with his homework and one year old Hamzah crawling under proved unusually symbolic representations of sobriety and patience. Both provided a soothing touch for tense nerves under extreme time pressure.
