I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude to my revered supervisor, Professor Balram K. Gupta, Chairman, Department of Laws, Panjab University, Chandigarh. His legal acumen in the legal world and academic interests illuminated my understanding on the subject which helped and encouraged me to pursue the present work. His crisp critical comments and sympathetic guidance made me to rethink and reformulate several parts of the present work. Despite his pre-occupation in the administrative and academic matters, Professor Gupta has given me unstinted, patient help and co-operation in the completion of this work. As a guide, he has been most patient and indulgent. His vast experience as a researcher and teacher enabled me to steer clear through many mistakes and complexities of the work. I express my grateful thanks galore for all the assistance that I have received from him.

I also remain indebted to Professor J.K. Mittal, Indian Law Institute, New Delhi, who enthused me in this field at the LL.M. level and inculcated in me the spirit of a researcher.

I would like to thank the members of the teaching fraternity for their courteous and helpful attitude. I thank all my former colleagues of the Faculty of Law, University of Jammu, Jammu, where I served for a few years and also my colleagues in the Department of Laws, Panjab University, Chandigarh, where I am serving at present.

I remain grateful to Dr. D. R. Grover, Head, Department of Library Science, University of Jammu, Jammu and Mrs. Paramjit Kaur, Research Scholar, Department of Laws, Panjab University, Chandigarh, who read many portions of the thesis and pointed out many typographical mistakes.

Access to literature always poses problems. In this regard, I would like to thank the library staff of the Department of Law, Panjab University, Chandigarh, Faculty of Law, University of Jammu, Jammu, Haryana Institute of Public Administration, Chandigarh and Indian Law Institute, New Delhi. I would like to specially thank Sh. Vinod Sharma, Advocate, Punjab & Haryana High Court, who lent his entire library at my disposal during the course of writing this thesis.

I am thankful to my wife Nishtha, who not only gave her help and co-operation all throughout in different ways but also offered her counsel of prudence on some aspects of my analysis. The cheerful smiles of my daughter Vidushi never let me feel sad and bad during the course of this work. I remain apologetic to my daughter, for, due to my involvement in studies, I could not give her full time during her tender age, when she needed it the most. I also remain indebted to my parents and parents-in-laws for their constant help and encouragements. For, they enthused me and stired my flagging spirit during the course of my studies in the subject.

Lastly, I must acknowledge that I was fortunate to have the services of Mr. Sagar, who very devotedly and efficiently typed my thesis and spared no efforts to give the manuscript present shape.
