ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

All praise is due to Allah for his guidance and grace. Actually, many people have contributed, indirectly, to the completion of this research and I wish to express my heartfelt acknowledgement to all of them. Space limitations do not allow me to mention everyone by name but still there are a number of individuals and bodies that deserve recognition:

* First and foremost, I owe profound gratitude to my supervisor Dr. Prabha Sampath for her kindness, seriousness, punctuality, invaluable encouragement and scholarly comments.
* Dr. Ashok Thorat, director of Institute of Advanced Studies in English-University of Pune, for his sincere and academic response.
* Dr. Shirish Chindhade (Institute of Advanced Studies in English) for his scholarly response and readiness for help at the beginning of this study.
* The Government of India, the International Council for Cultural Relationships (ICCR) and the University of Pune for providing me this opportunity to pursue my Ph. D. study.
* Ministry of Higher Education and Scientific Research in Iraq, the Embassy of Iraq and the Iraqi Cultural Office in Delhi for their support.
* Dr. Jabbar H. Habeeb, the professor of American literature in the University of Baghdad, the motive that stimulates the spirit of competition in me to pursue M. A. and Ph. D. respectively.
* My wife and children for their self denying, patience and endurance during the time of study in India.
* Last, but not the least, my colleagues at the department of English University of Anbar- Iraq for their everlasting encouragement.
