Acknowledgements

I am greatly indebted to my supervisor Dr. H.J.L. Rentri (earlier - Professor of University Methodology, Central Institute of English and Foreign Languages, Hyderabad; at present - Course Director, Language Cell, Department of English, Osmania University, Hyderabad) for his valuable help and guidance at every stage of writing this dissertation. I could bear all the hardships and get through all the difficulties encountered during the last three years of study, only because he stood by me as a 'Teacher, Guide, and Saviour'. He showed a creative interest in my work and took great pains to bring it to fruition.

I cherish the memory of two other teachers at the CIEFL - Dr. R.N. Ghosh, Professor and Head of the Department of Methods, and Mr. Jacob Tharu, Department of Evaluation and Testing, who helped me in several ways when I was at the Institute during the earlier days (1978) of undertaking this study.

I find no words to express my gratitude to my husband, Shanteshwar, who encouraged me to do M.Litt. (1977) at the CIEFL, and then to undertake the writing of this dissertation. But for his love and inspiration, it would not have been possible for me to complete this work within such a short time.

I am particularly grateful to my sister Vijaya for having looked to my needs with love and care during the period of writing this dissertation. I also express my deepest sense of gratitude to her late husband Dr. Valayaresh Katti (who died an immature death recently) who had helped me in the earlier stages of this study.

Besides, I thank the following persons for their valuable help rendered during the course of my study:

1. the library staff of (i) Central College, Bangalore, (ii) Mysore University, (iii) Bangalore University, (iv) Karnataka University, and (v) College of Education, Karnataka University;

2. Office staff of (i) State Educational Research and Training Centre, (ii) Department of Collegiate Education, Government of Karnataka;

3. Prof. Chakrapani, Head of the Department of English, University of Agricultural Sciences, Dharwad;

4. Dr. H.C. Vishnururthy, Dr. Sharad Antin, Sri. Gangadhar, Prof. Eilekal, Shri H.D. Yelburgi, and Smt. Annapurna Tagarpur (for their special help during the course of my field study).

My special thanks are due to my colleague, Prof. V. R. Vulkarni, Department of English, Karnataka Arts College, Dharwad, for having taken the trouble of proofreading this dissertation.
