ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

This is to acknowledge my indebtedness to guide Dr. B. M. Wali without whose encouragement, I would not have completed this research work.

I am equally indebted to my husband Dr. Nagaraju, inspite of his busy programme of attending to tax matters, had all academic interest, having completed his research in Karnataka University, who motivated me to undertake this research project. I am greatly indebted to him not as a wife but as a research student.

Here I take an opportunity to thank Dr. C. C. Pattanshetti, who helped me in directing the research project.

The Typist cannot be ignored. He was instrumental in finally bringing out the typed copies on his ELECTRONIC TYPEWRITER in a record time.

I am equally indebted to all the Forest-based unit holders for their unstinted cooperation in furnishing the required data for the thesis. The officers of the State Forest Department, Karnataka, State Plantation Corporation Karnataka Government, equally deserve my thanks.

In fine, I am very much obliged to officers of the Karnataka University, Dharwad, for their assistance, encouragement as and when, I requested, particularly when I asked for extension of time.
