

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I place on record my deep sense of gratitude to my teacher and guide, Dr.A.M.Rajasekhariah, Babasaheb Ambedkar Professor of Political Science and Head of the Department, Karnatak University, Dharwad. It is an established fact that my guide is a great and erudite scholar who has meaningfully interpreted the life, the ideas and the ideals of Dr.B.R.Ambedkar. In due recognition of his work, he adorns the 'Babasaheb Ambedkar Memorial Chair' in the Karnatak University as the first Professor. His kindness and sympathy towards me and his keen interest in my undertaking this study have placed me under an obligation which I may not be able to repay in my life-time. I am extremely glad that this work has undergone his closest supervision and scrutiny including my thorough theoretical discussions which have avoided many lapses.

I am much indebted to the authorities of Karnatak University Library, Dharwad; Mysore University Library, Mysore; Bangalore University Library, Bangalore; University Library, Bombay; Gokhale Institute of Public Affairs, Bangalore; Personal Library of the former Maharaja of Ramdurg; Navajivan Trust, Ahmedabad; Bhakakra Library - Sardar Patel University, Vallabh Vidyanagar, Dist. Kaira, (Gujarat); Gujarat University Library, Ahmedabad; Gujarath Vidyapith Library, Gandhi Bhavan, Ahmedabad; Government of India National Library, Belvedere, Calcutta; Connemara Public Library, Madras; Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, Bombay; Lok Sabha Secretariat, Parliament Library, New Delhi; The British Museum, Bibliographical Information Service, The Reading Room, London; The Royal Commonwealth Society, London; The High Commission of India Library, London; India Office Library - India Office Records, Commonwealth Office, London; British Library of Political and Economic Science, London; and School of Economics and Political Science, Aldwych, London for having provided me a lot of material for the preparation of this thesis.

My thanks are also due to the authorities of various Libraries of the Colleges and Institutions for their willing help and cooperation.

I am also thankful to Shri G.S.Byadgi for typing the thesis neatly. Finally, I am deeply indebted to my parents who showed me the way.
