ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am grateful to my guide, Prof. G.V. AJJAPPA, Principal, University College of Law and Head of the Post-Graduate Department of Law, Karnatak University for the able guidance, valuable suggestions, long hours of discussions in different sessions, constant encouragement and kind treatment during several trips I made to Dharwar in connection with my research work.

My thanks are due to the Vice-Chancellors of Karnatak University for granting me extension of time for submission of the thesis. I am grateful to Sri S.S. Wodeyar, Vice-Chancellor, Karnatak University for the personal interest he has taken in my progress. Prof. S. Venkataraman, my revered teacher, was instrumental in my choice of this subject when he suggested to me while I was a student in B.L., in Andhra University two decades ago, the topic on right to property to present a paper to the seminar in the Department of Law. I owe a debt of gratitude to him for the continued interest he showed in my welfare.

My sincere thanks are due to Prof. G.C.V. Subra Rao, my teacher, Prof. T.S. Rama Rao, Prof. Upendra Baxi, P. Ramachandra Reddy, Advocate-General, Andhra Pradesh for the useful discussions and encouragement given to me.

I am grateful to Dr. S.N. Jain, Director, Indian Law Institute, for encouraging me to go ahead with the work when I was wavering about the project five years ago, and for his continued help.

It is embarrassing and difficult to express my appreciative recognition to my better half who sacrificed all her leisure, recreation and rest in helping me at every step in this work without which it would have been difficult to complete saddled with many responsibilities.

My dear students deserve my appreciation for enthusiastically assisting me in preparing the appendices and checking the typed scripts.

My thanks are due to Mr. G. Subrhamanyam and Mr. Venkatamuni for typing the manuscripts patiently.

P. KOTESWAR RAO.
