Introduction

PART I : INTRODUCTORY

I The setting of inter-regional balanced growth

Inter-regional balance in India - the region defined - land economy - major determinants - method of regional demarcation - delineation of regions in Mysore State - regionality of the development factors

PART II : LOCATIONAL & DEVELOPMENTAL FACTORS

II : The survey design

Introduction to the survey - the sample design and the survey - questionnaire - tabulation and interpretation - general limitation of the survey - similar surveys

III The location - causes

The cause of location - findings of other comparative studies

IV The location (Contd) - subsequent experience

Changes in the location situation over years - the size determinants - expansion - impediments to expansion - general problems facing the industries - local impact : urbanisation, inducement of cumulative growth, resource and man-power utilisation - general performance of the industries

V Individual Locational & developmental factors - materials

(1) Raw-material - cause of location - contribution to changes in locality as determinant of size - as restriction to expansion - as a problem of operation

(2) Market - as a cause of location - as determinant of unit size - as determinant to expansion - as a problem of operation

(3) Transport - as a cause of location - contribution to change in location situation - general access to transport - as current problem

(4) Power

Contd

- VI Individual locational & developmental factors
(Contd) - Human
- (1) Labour - as a cause of location - contribution to change in location - as size determinant to expansion - as a problem
 - (2) Enterprise - motivation - corroborative evidence - inter-regional mobility

Appendices to Part II : The sample and the questionnaire

PART III REGIONAL SYNTHESIS OF MYSORE STATE

VII Mysore State and its regions

The State diversity and lack of unity - natural regions - disparity in growth and pattern

- (1) The Coastal Region - features of the land - the future development - transport, a major factor - integration with inter-land - industrialisation imperative and location advantages
- (2) Malnad - demarcation problem - the land - problem of isolation - underdevelopment - expansion of the traditional economy - urbanisation and industrialisation - the unique features and problems of Coorg - other factors in the development of the Malnad

VIII Mysore State and its regions (Contd)

- (1) The Transitional region - delineation - the land - Maidan oriented developed region - the future development
- (2) The Northern Maidan - a backward tract with great many handicaps - the development course more difficult - the needs and prospects for a large industrial complex - other developmental pre-requisites - other problems
- (3) The Southern Maidan - the land - a developed region - general development plans and prospects of the future - major problems and plans of development Kolar, Mandya, Tumkur and Chitaldurg, Mysore, Bangalore - the Southern ribbon urban development

IX The industrial growth and pattern in Mysore

The Coastal region - North Maidan and the Transitional region - the Southern Maidan - development, a mixed success - why Mysore industries and industrial efforts failed - general growth and pattern of distribution - the future growth

Contd

- X The extractive resource base
- (1) Agricultural resource base - sugar-cane and its derived raw materials - cotton - oil seeds - rice
 - (2) Forest resource base - industries based on cellulosic raw materials - plywood and saw-mills - forest based other industries - conditions of extraction and processing
 - (3) Mineral resource base - regionality and its implications - assessment of the resource - industrial potentiality of important minerals

- XI Transport and power
- (1) Transport - basic conditions of transport strategy - transport in the Coastal Region - transport in the Malnad - transport in the Plains - new railways proposed
 - (2) Power - Other development components and the final note of discord
Investment plans for inter-district and inter-state balance
