ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This thesis is a reconstruction of Vīraśaiva mysticism studied from a philosophical point of view. There are many works on Vīraśaiva philosophy and Vīraśaiva mysticism, but they are all authored by non-philosophers and lacking in analytical and comparative approach. This thesis having the distinction of being the first philosophical study of Vīraśaiva mysticism attempts to overcome this deficiency.

This work would not have been possible without the guidance, supervision, inducing and encouragement given by Dr. N. G. Mahadevappa, Professor (retired), Department of Philosophy, Karnataka University, Dharwad.

He has helped in the preparation of this thesis by inconveniencing himself in various ways. If I say "I am grateful to him" it is because I have no better expression.

I am also grateful to Dr. R. I. Ingalalli, Professor, Dept. of Philosophy, Karnataka University, Dharwad., for giving constructive suggestions at every stage of the preparation of the thesis.

I must offer my grateful thanks to the authorities of the Karnataka University, Dharwad for offering me University Research Students Scholarship to enable me to undertake and complete the work. Similarly, I offer my grateful thanks to the various staff members of the Karnatak University Library for their readiness in procuring the books I needed for my research.

I fail in my duty if I did not thank the members of my family who not only bore with me but also encouraged me to complete the thesis at the earliest.

Finally, I record my heartfelt thanks to Chaitanya Data Processing Centre, for producing this thesis in a neat and error-free manner on their computer.
