BIBLIOGRAPHY

WEBSITE REFERENCES

Encyclopedia of World Biography on David Herbert Lawrence, at: http://www.bookrags.com/biography/david-herbert-lawrence/

D. H. Lawrence Resources includes an extended biography, bibliography, information about Lawrence’s circle of friends and collections held elsewhere, at http://www.nottingham.ac.uk/mss/online/dhlawrence/

http://www.nottingham.ac.uk/mss/online/dhlawrence/dhl-faqs.phtml

Detailed online catalogues of printed works and archive material held at the University, at http://www.nottingham.ac.uk/mss/online/dhlawrence/holdings.phtml

The Centre is the focus for research and is located in the School of English Studies at The University of Nottingham, at http://www.nottingham.ac.uk/english/research/lawrence/

Information on courses and research opportunities at the University, at http://www.nottingham.ac.uk/english/

Online version of the first D. H. Lawrence exhibition at the Weston Gallery in 2001, at http://www.nottingham.ac.uk/mss/online/online-exhibitions/exhib_dhl/

http://www.eBookstore.tandf.co.uk

http://www.Dh-lawrence.org.uk/timeline.html

Links to other web sites with literary criticism, journals, discussion groups, societies, enthusiasts’ personal pages, films and audio recordings, at http://www.nottingham.ac.uk/mss/online/dhlawrence/links.phtml

D. H. Lawrence collected his father’s wages from this building when it was the offices of the Barber, Walker Coal Company. Now restored, it houses exhibitions, which include aspects of Lawrence’s life, as well as reflecting Victorian life in the area.

Visitor numbers to D. H. Lawrence Heritage for the last two years (2004 & 2005) have been around 27,500 per year. At http://www.broxtowe.gov.uk/index/tourism/tourism_dhl.htm

A useful online guide detailing Lawrence places of interest across Nottinghamshire, at http://www.lawrenceinnotts.org.uk/index.shtml