ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I take this opportunity to acknowledge my gratitude to Dr. N.A. Patil, Professor and ex-Chairman, Department of Political Science, Karnatak University, Dharwad, under whose guidance the study was taken up and completed. But for Dr. Patil's encouragement and assistance the completion of this study would have been impossible.

I am thankful to the faculty members of the Political Science Department for their guidance and valuable suggestions given from time to time. Retired Professors of the Department, particularly Dr. K. Raghavendra Rao and Dr. R.T. Jangam, have helped me from time to time with their advice and discussion and so have the present members, particularly Dr. V.S. Patil, Professor and Chairman, and Dr. S.Y. Gubbannavar, Professor.

Some Professors of the other departments too have helped me in pursuing this work. In particular, I must mention the name of Mr. S.V. Patil, (Retired) Reader, Department of Philosophy (of the Karnatak University) for aiding me in analysing the philosophical portions of this work. My thanks are due to him.
I should place on record my gratitude to Dr. S. Rame Gowda, Vice-Chancellor of the Karnatak University, and Mr. B. P. Kaniram, Registrar of the University, for providing valuable financial assistance for this research work. In this connection I must also acknowledge, with thanks, the appreciation shown by the SC and ST (Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes) Cell of the University, of my needs and difficulties and extending accordingly the financial assistance from time to time.

The Karnatak University librarian, Professor R. C. Patil, as well as the Assistant Librarians (Dr. S. C. Kendadmath in particular), have given me a good deal of cooperation and assistance and I must thank all of them.

Finally various other individuals and institutions have given me their cooperation and assistance. I must record my appreciation in this regard and I may be excused for not listing here all the names.

(G. B. Nandana)
