ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am grateful to Dr. C.V. VENUGOPAL, Professor of English, Karnatak University, Dharwad for having kindly acted as my guide in the preparation of this thesis. He was ever ready to discuss the topic at leisure and help me to develop a clear view of things.

Professor C.R. Yaravintelimath, Chairman, Department of Studies in English, Karnatak University, encouraged me throughout. All my other teachers in the Department have also offered me suggestions and guidance. I thank them all.

I remember with gratitude Professor C.D. Narasimhaiah for permitting me to present a paper on Lawson at a Seminar in Dhvanyaloka, Mysore. He also kindly allowed me the use of the library there. My thanks are due to Professor H.H. Anniah Gowda of ICASEL, Mysore, who also permitted me the use of his Institute's library. The Librarian and the staff of the Karnatak University Library were always helpful.

I thank Sri Suresh Baddi for neatly typing the thesis.
