Acknowledgments

This thesis is an outcome of a field study conducted in Nigadi, a village in Dharwad district of Karnataka state, India. The field work was conducted for a period of eight months from 5th November 2007 to 2nd August 2008. The present research has tried to bring out cultural understanding of the Gender and Reproductive Health. Realization of this work was a long journey and would not have been complete without the patience, support, help, and trust of many wonderful people around.

I owe a great deal to my teacher and guide Prof. C.G. Hussain Khan. This work would not have been complete without his relentless guidance and encouragement. Sir's valuable inputs and time to time critical remarks helped me in understanding the rigours of anthropological research. I remain indebted to sir for his support and concern during the study.

I thank Indian Council of Medical Research for funding my research. I acknowledge the help of Ms. Sandhya Diwakar of ICMR in particular for being helping whenever I contacted her.

I will be failing in my duty if I do not express my gratitude towards people of Nigadi, who considered me as one among them. Without their co-operation my research work would not have been possible. I am grateful to the elder women of the village who include Siddawa aiji, Madevi Hiremath, Yellavva aiji, Tangyavva, Rudyal Akkavaru, Rudravva, who made me part of their family and taught me their way of life. I also thank Ningappa Patil, Malleshi Benni, Dyamanna Kotabagi, Basappa Jirgwad for taking me to their paddy fields and showing me how agriculture is part of their life. My sincere thanks to Renuka Yellappa Bhajantri, Yellappa Bhajantri, Basappa Madar, and Chennavva Basappa Madar for sharing information and for always being there whenever needed them and for being patient enough to clarifying my doubts related to various aspects of village life. I express my gratitude to Shanmukappa Haliyal, Tolappa Badad, Somangowda Patil for helping me during the course of my field work in the village. I am indebted to Ratna Basappa Kotabag without whom I would have not been able to gather information on such a sensitive topic. I thank Gangadhar Yedalli for helping me in the initial stages of field work and taking me to close to knowing the people. I remember all the women who agreed to talk to me and share the most personal information related to puberty, pregnancy, delivery, post partum, child care and family planning.

The Family Planning Association of India needs special mention. It is from them the field work began. I thank Mr. Morab for helping me finding a suitable village to do the field work. Special thanks to Mr. Ningappa Madivalar for introducing me to the people of the village.

I thank all the faculty members of the Department of Anthropology, Prof S.V Hittalmani, Prof K.C Tarachand, Dr.D.M Naik, Dr.P.P Pavate, Sri R.M Girji and Dr. T.T Basavangouda for their encouragement and guidance during the course of my research. I am extremely indebted Prof.Gurumurthy Prof.B.B.Gai, Dr.Ram Gambhir, Dr.Hemant Apte, Dr.Jyoti Hallad for giving me valuable insights during the course of my study.

I thank Mr.Hiregoudar, Mr.Managundi and Mr.Shivakumar Metri of Department of Anthropology and Ms.Akki, Mr.Basavaraj, Mr.Muttu for their kind support during my research.

I remember all my fellow research scholars of Department of Anthropology who provided me with timely and helpful advice during the course of my research.

I would like to extend my heartfelt gratitude towards all my friends and well wishers. I would like to thank Ajay Baily for every visit that he made to my house whenever he came to Dharwad, and all the books that he gave me which added to my work. Ambuja Kowlgi, for every phone call she made and the concern she showed in finishing my work.

This work would not have been complete without the love, care and support of my parents. They stood by me in my ups and downs, encouraged me and took care of me. This work was possible only because of the sacrifices they made for me.
