ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I take this opportunity to express my gratitude to my guide Dr. Mallikarjun Patil for his guidance and encouragement throughout my research period. The completion of this thesis would not have been possible without his substantial guidance in the form of discussion, suggestion and clarification. And I also thank Dr. Nanda Patil, who has encouraged me in my academic endeavour.

I am particularly grateful to Prof. M. B. Walikar, the Hon’ble Vice-Chancellor, Karnataka University, Dharwad for his encouragement. I am thankful to Dr V. K. Guttal, the Chairperson, Dr. Basavaraj Naikar, Dr Shamala Ratnakar and Mr. Ashok Hulibandi, the staff, Dept of English, K. U. Dharwad for their encouragement. I am thankful to Prof M. T. Kamble, Chairman, Dept of History, Karnataka University and Dr Basavaraj Tallur, Assit Professor of English, Govt Degree College, Hulbi for their encouragement.

Likewise, I am grateful to the library staff, K. U. Dharwad, E. F. L. University and Central University, Hyderabad, Jnanabharati, Bangalore University and the University of Pune for their prompt help in my effort to collect library materials.

I am beholden to my father, my wife, relatives and friends for their encouragement. I also thank the DTP workers and book binders for their neat typing and binding of the thesis.
