During the course of my research work, I have been helped in many respects by many persons and agencies. Among them I am deeply indebted to:

Dr. K.C. Tarachand, Reader, Department of Anthropology, Karnataka University, Dharwad and also my Research Guide, who provided me with an opportunity to work for Doctoral Degree, and helped me with his intellectual abilities and valuable suggestion in writing this thesis.

The staff and Research students of Anthropology Department, Karnataka University, Dharwad for their help and suggestion given to me from time to time.

The authorities of Karnataka University specially the SC/ST cell for providing financial assistance to me.

To Prof. J.L.Kalyan, Lecturer, Department of Criminology, Karnataka Science College, Dharwad for his constant encouragement given to me while writing this thesis.

To my friends Shivanand Nari, D.S.Talwar, Ramakrishna G, Suresh, Ravi, Prakash, Nadaf, Kadakol, Sreedhar, Krishna, Miss Ambuja, Prasanna Kalaskar, Sanju, Malleshi, and Parshurama for their outstanding help and cooperation given to me while doing research.
The people of Hakkipikki in General and Mr. Mukunda in particular for their whole hearted co-operation extended to me while doing field work.

The librarian of Karanatak University, Dharwad and his staff for their excellent facilities given to me.

My parents for their help given to me doing the Ph.D. work.

My sister Smt. Rekha Rathod and brother-in-law Shri. Prakash Rathod for their constant support, encourgment and kind hearted support extened to me to complete this work.

Department of Anthropology
Karnatak University
Dharwad

Date: 29/11/2002

(Vinod H. Naik)