ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis would not have been written without the help and support of a number of individuals. The foremost among them is my Ph.D. supervisor Prof. Shrikant S. Bahulkar, Adjunct Professor Department of Pali, Savitribai Phule Pune University, who has not only shared his profound knowledge but also taken care of my poor writing skill. I am very grateful for his valuable comments and minute observations.

My thanks are also due to Prof. M. G. Dhadphale, Ex. Honorary Secretary, Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Pune, who went through my thesis and has given many valuable suggestions.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my respect to Prof. Mahesh A. Deokar, Head, Department of Pali, Savitribai Phule Pune University. Prof. Deokar is always a source of inspiration for me. Without his support and encouragement this work would not have attained in its present shape. His comments and suggestions were very useful in preparing the preliminary edition of the Cāṇakyanīti-Pāli. I am also very thankful to Dr. Lata M. Deokar who has made available to me texts related to this thesis from the Philipps University, Marburg, Germany.

My colleagues and students in the Department have always encouraged me in this endeavor. I deeply cherish the support of my family and blessings of my parents in all my academic undertakings.

Among many things that I admire in the Buddhist tradition one is the tradition of dedicating merit. If there is any merit in this work, I would like to dedicate it for the welfare of all sentient beings.
