The thesis was written for two reasons. Firstly, because relationship psychology is preoccupied with the various interest areas especially marital functioning. Secondly, it is a need of society for a readable and accessible introductory text on marital distress. The thesis has been carried out to be a practical approach on all the possible causes of quarrel between husband and wife. The most common existing quarrel between husband and wife has been squeezed down to essentials.

The thesis has been organized in five parts: Part one Introduction, Part two Method, Part three: Result, Part four: Discussion and Part five: Summary.

The introductory part covers marital dissatisfaction and related factors affecting it. Brief reviews are provided for the various dimension of marital interaction. The method section consists of design, participants and tools employed. The result section consist of regression analysis followed by next section, discussion which throws light on the observations made during the course of investigation that are causes behind the factors responsible for quarrel described in result section. A brief summary covers final section.

The present investigation would not have been possible without the blessing of the almighty. It is my great pleasure to express immense gratitude to my Supervisor, Dr. Bansh Gopal Singh, Professor of Psychology, Pt. Ravishankar Shukla University, Raipur (C.G.) for his insightful guidance and creative take to make this study immensely exclusive and impeccable. Without his creative imagination, I would have never taken up challenge of this nature of complex human relationship. I thank him for his untiring efforts to take out the best in me.
I am deeply grateful to Dr. B. Hassan Head, School of Studies in Psychology, Pt. Ravishankar Shukla University, Raipur (C.G.) for all kind of help and support. I am heartily indebted to him for extending me all necessary facilities. I am also grateful to Dr. Promilla Singh, Dr. Priyamvada Shrivastava Dr. Meeta Jha, and Dr. P Shukla, for providing their invaluable guidance and academic support.

My Parents Mr. D.R Deshmukh and Mrs. Manju Deshmukh and younger brother, Ankur help and support can never match words to thank them. Friends and colleagues, Swati Mishra, Harsha Sahu, Sushma Umre and Rupendra Rao, all have contributed much to the execution of thesis. I would also like to extend my thankfulness to the counselors and judges, advocates of family court, without their support data collection was not possible. Principal judge, Shri Dinesh Kumar Tiwari, additional judges, Smt. Anuradha Khare, Smt. Kanta Martin and Shri. G.K. Mishra. The support of counselors, Ashok Jayswal, S.K. Mishra, Saroj Singh, Anjana Shrivastava, Dr. Nagesh Sharma and Abha S. Kumar helping the researcher to view quarrel through a more broad and mature level. Co-operation of Ramesh Sharma, Sushma Mishra, B, Tripathi, Dolly Pawar and Jayashree Neerapure was irie.

I would also like to thank all the persons who were directly or indirectly involved in the selection, allocation and distribution of scholarship.

Lastly, I sincerely thank all the people who directly and indirectly contributed me during the execution of my research work.

Ankita Deshmukh