Acknowledgement

At the outset, let me bow my head before the God almighty, the giver of all good gifts, for showering his innumerable graces on me all through my life and brought me to this moment of new achievement.

With the moments of joy and satisfaction I place on record my gratitude to those who have been directly or indirectly instrumental in the accomplishment of this long cherished dream.

It is with deepest sentiments that I wish to express my heartfelt indebtedness and gratitude to my supervising teacher, Prof. Dr. Shally Joseph for her expert guidance and valuable advices given to me throughout the course of my research study. My indebtedness to her is beyond words and expression. Her understanding, patience, enthusiasm, earnestness and most importantly her comradeship and concern has been an added source of inspiration to me.

I am duty bound to express my profound thanks to Dr. Sr. Teresa, the Principal and Sr. Christabelle, the Former Principal, St. Teresa’s College, Ernakulam for their prompt and sympathetic response, whenever they were approached. I am extremely grateful to the faculty members of the Dept. of Sociology, St. Teresa’s College, especially to my teachers for the encouragement they rendered during the course of my study. I am also obliged to the Librarians and the administrative staff of St. Teresa’s College for their invaluable support lent to me.
Mere words are not enough to express my gratitude to Dr. Reeta Krishnan, Former Head of the Department of Psychology, University College, Thiruvananthapuram, for her valuable contributions in framing the indices used in my work. I wish to express my unbound acknowledgement to Dr. Krishnamayi, Vimala College, Thrissur and Mrs. Sabeena who painstakingly reviewed this thesis and provided their valuable feedback on it. I would also like to thank Dr. E. S. Jeevanand, Department of Mathematics, UC College, Aluva for helping me out in the statistical data analysis and suggestions given in this regard.

I would be failing in my duty if I do not record my gratitude to the 500 respondents of my study for their co-operation and spending their valuable time for giving useful information enabling this study.

I would also like to acknowledge my sincere gratitude to various social, political and religious leaders of Malabar, especially to Prof. Kadavanad Mohammed, Prof. Mohammed Unni Elias, the Principal of MES College, Ponnani, Mohammed Kutty, Ponnani, Subair, Puthuponnani, other social workers, school teachers, advocates, anganwadi workers and all other people who have contributed to the quality of the contents and to bring the report as realistic as possible.

This academic journey would have been impossible without financial and moral support from my loving husband Subramaniam who persistently helped me in all ways and encouraged me to keep on working to the end. Saving the best for last, my thanks, which cannot be fully expressed in words, go to him for being a great supporter in this endeavor. I take this opportunity to appreciate my beloved daughter, Swathikedini, who loved and motivated me, whenever I felt burned out and exasperated. Things would not have been the same without you by my side.

Words cannot express my immense gratitude to my parents, my brother, sister and brother-in-law for being such a supportive family, standing behind me with their love and support.

I am also thankful to all my friends and benefactors especially Ms. Fatima for her constant support and enthusiasm in my academic life. I wish to thank them for their kind help in one way or the other. I remember them all with gratitude.

Sindhu. C. A.
