ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This thesis has been prompted by the recent realization of the importance of the effect of specific yogic exercises and combination of specific yogic exercises with autogenic training on selected physiological, psychological and biochemical variables of the middle aged men. It is the result of four years of hard work based on my own research experience in Physical Education and Sports, and suggestions and assistance of many academics and the writings of great authors. I take this opportunity to acknowledge the services of those great minds.

I continue to be indebted and grateful to my supervisor Dr. Ch. V. S. T. Saikumar, Reader, Sri Ramakrishna Mission Vidyalya, Maruthi College of Physical Education, Coimbatore for his valuable guidance, innovative thinking and keen interest in shaping this thesis to its perfection.

I owe my sincere thanks to Dr. Alagesan, Principal, Sri Ramakrishna Mission Vidyalya, Maruthi College of Physical Education, and Coimbatore for granting me necessary permission to be a part-time candidate and to all the learned faculty of the Maruthi College of Physical Education for their moral support and inspiration.

I owe my heartfelt thanks to Dr. A. Pushparajan, Professor and Head, Department of Physical Education, Bharathiar University, Coimbatore for his valuable support and suggestions.
I express my unalloyed gratitude to Ms. S. Malarvizhi, Chairperson, Sri Krishna College of Engineering and Technology for her gracious permission to undertake this research work and make use of the facilities in the college.

My indebtedness and gratitude are due to Dr. S. Subramanian, Advisor and Dr. S. Subramainan, Principal, Sri Krishna College of Engineering and Technology, Coimbatore, for their lenience and flexibility shown to me during the period of this research work.

I am extremely thankful to Prof. V. Krishnan, Department of English, V.L.B Janakiammal College of Arts and Science, Coimbatore and Dr. S. Duraisamy, Professor, Department of Computer Applications, Sri Krishna College of Engineering and Technology, Coimbatore for their technical guidance and help.

Above all, this arduous task manifests the greatness of God, the Almighty, who has showered His abundant grace on me and endowed me with wisdom, inspiration, mental courage and good health throughout the period of my research. My heart swells with gratitude to Him.
