“In the name of Almighty God, the most merciful, the most beneficent”

Though words are often inadequate to express the feelings of the heart, one must acknowledge the genuine help and support received from others during the fulfillment of a particular task.

With great pleasure, it is my privilege to express my deep sense of gratitude and sincere regards to my supervisor Dr. Sunil Kumar, Reader, Punjab School of Economics, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, who despite his immense academic responsibilities very kindly consented to supervise this study. I also take this opportunity to express my profound gratitude for his valuable support for creating research ability and aptitude in me. Thanks are extended to him for his encouraging and enthusiastic guidance and helpful criticism during the course of this work. His keen sense of professionalism lent a new edge and much needed direction to this doctoral thesis. It was only because of his sincere efforts that I have been ultimately able to accomplish this task. I am extremely thankful to Dr. Vikram Chadha, Professor and Head, Punjab School of Economics, and Dean, Faculty of Economics and Business, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, for helping me in each possible manner.

I would like to acknowledge the worthy financial assistance of University Grant Commission (UGC), New Delhi, provided to me under the Junior Research Fellowship (JRF) scheme to complete my thesis and course work. Without the financial aid of UGC, this work could not have been completed under the stiff financial conditions faced by me. Therefore, the UGC deserve a note of appreciation for its efforts to promote research via providing JRF to deserving candidates.

I am also thankful to S.Mukhtar Singh and S.Bakhtawar Singh, Librarians, Punjab School of Economics for their help in making best use of the library. I also feel obliged to the library staff of Bhai Gurdas Library, Guru Nanak Dev University; Rattan Tata Library, Delhi School of Economics; Institute of Economic Growth, New Delhi; National Council of Applied Economics and Research (NCAER), New Delhi; and Indira Gandhi Institute of Development Research (IGIDR), Mumbai for their invaluable help in procuring the relevant data and literature.
I would also like to extend a special thanks to Dr. Subrata Sarkar, Dr. Jayati Sarkar and Dr. Susan Thomas, faculty members of Indira Gandhi Institute of Development Research, Mumbai, for providing useful comments and suggestions which have resulted in significant improvements in the quality of the research. This work has also benefited from the comments of Dr. Balwant Singh, Advisor, Reserve Bank of India, Mumbai, and Dr. Fadzlan Sufian, Department of Economics, Faculty of Economics and Management, University of Putra Malaysia.

I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude to my parents and guardian who have been very cooperative and helpful in my research work. Without the encouragement and moral support of them, I could never have been what I am today.

Thanks are also due to my friends and colleague research scholars who being very supportive and encouraged me in each and every phase to complete the task.
