ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My interest in the study of Swami Vivekananda arose during my post graduation. With the beginning of era of globalization in the late twentieth century in India, the pondering began on the socio-economic and political set up. It also led to analyse the personalities who were the chief architect for India’s freedom movement. It was a matter of curiosity for me that a spiritualist can be nationalist at the same time because the former is supposed to transcend the boundaries of nations, people and other finite limits. Vivekananda’s powerful utterances against poverty and inculcation of the waves of strength and sacrifice among the Indians provided me a thought provoking space and the need to visualize and analyse the philosophy of Swami Vivekananda. It inspired me start this research work.

This research work was initiated with the inspiration of Sh. Chander Shekhar Talwar, I. A. S. Founder Secretary, Swami Vivekananda Study Circle, Head Office, Ludhiana. He not only encouraged but also helped a lot in understanding the life and teachings of Swami Vivekananda.

I am greatly indebted to Professor Sukhwant Singh, Department of History, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, for guidance. His valuable suggestions were instrumental in restructuring and reshaping my arguments.
