ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I humbly prostrate before the Almighty for Showering His plentiful blessings on me all through my research work.

My sincere gratitude goes to my research guide, Dr. M. Gangadharappa. Professor, Department of Mass Communication and Journalism, Karnataka University, Dharwad for his valuable guidance throughout the research work.

My thanks are also due to Dr. A. S. Balasubramanya, Professor, Department of Mass Communication and Journalism, Karnataka University Dharwad for his valuable guidance and support.

And I also thank Dr. Nayana Gangadhara for valuable time spending during my research.

I express a deep sense of indebtedness to the Department of Mass Communication and Journalism, Karnataka University, Dharwad, which gave me an opportunity to explore my research on “Status of Working Women Journalists in Karnataka - A Study”.

I would like to thank University SC/ST Cell for providing me with financial support.

I owe my thanks to all my friends, for their useful information and suggestions. And unlike many, I have a number of friends and most of them used to enquire me about the progress of the thesis frequently. In a way, many a times, I was forced to work on the thesis following pressure from my friends to complete it at the earliest.

My word of thanks to the respondents without whose co-operation, my thesis would not have been successful.

My heartfelt thanks are also due to my Appa-Amma and elder sister Gurubai, brother-in-law Ramesh, elder brother Mallikarjun, Younger Sister Shamantakkamani, sister-in-laws Spoorti and Lata, Sanket without whose immense support and encouragement, I would not have been able to complete my research with ease.

It’s true that all matter and efforts cannot be written or explained in these two pages, there are many more people who have helped a lot during research. I thank them too.
