1. INTRODUCTION 1

2. REVIEW OF LITERATURE 5

2.1. Materials against insects infesting agricultural crops, forests and household products and vectors 6

2.2. Storage insects 12

3. MATERIAL AND METHODS 17

3.1. Test plant 17

3.2. Isolation 20

3.2.1. Fractionation of the product 20

3.2.2. Testing of biological activity 24

3.3. Identification 29

3.4. Evaluation 30

3.4.1. Laboratory tests 30

3.4.2. Tests under natural storage conditions 36

3.4.2.1. Grain damage 37

3.4.2.2. Viability test 37

3.4.2.3. Cooking quality test 38

3.4.2.4. Mammalian toxicity test 39

4. RESULTS 41

4.1. Isolation 41

4.1.1. Confirmation of biological activity in ethanol extract 41
4.1.2. Confirmation of biological activity in fractions I and II 43

4.1.2.1. Biological activity against eggs of the test insect species 43

4.1.2.2. Biological activity against larvae of the test insect species 45

4.1.2.3. Biological activity against adults of the test insect species 47

4.1.3. Confirmation of biological activity in fractions II-1 to II-8 49

4.1.3.1. Biological activity against eggs of the test insect species 49

4.1.3.2. Biological activity against larvae of the test insect species 52

4.1.3.3. Biological activity against adults of the test insect species 55

4.1.4. Confirmation of biological activity in fraction II-1(1) and II-1(2) 58

4.1.4.1. Biological activity against eggs of the test insect species 58

4.1.4.2. Biological activity against larvae of the test insect species 60

4.1.4.3. Biological activity against adults of the test insect species 62

4.2. Identification 64

4.2.1. Analytical data 64

4.2.2. Data interpretation 70

4.2.2.1. Molecular formula 70

4.2.2.2. Nature of oxygen 70

4.2.2.3. Nature of protons 71

4.2.2.4. General skeleton of the structure 71

4.3. Evaluation 73

4.3.1. Laboratory tests 73
4.3.2. Evaluation under natural conditions
4.3.2.1. Grain damage
4.3.2.2. Grain viability
4.3.2.3. Cooking quality
4.3.2.4. Mammalian toxicity
