ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My indebtedness to my supervisor, Dr. Madhu Sharma, Professor of History, ICDEOL, H.P. University, Shimla, for her generous and seasoned guidance, help and keen interest in my work is too deep for words. She watched my progress over the years and very kindly spared time for discussing my problems for months together and also going through all my drafts with her habitual thoroughness. She too graciously permitted me the use of her personal library. I am and would remain beholden to her for her scholarly and kindly suggestions during the course of the writing of my Ph.D. thesis. I am also grateful to Dr. Chetan Singh and Dr. Laxman Singh, Professors in the department of History of this very university. It was entirely because of their encouragement that I finally undertook this study. They also guided me with patience and kindness giving me freedom to pursue my own ideas. That despite the constant and valuable criticism and suggestions given by them many errors still have crept up is entirely due to my imperfection.

I shall always remember with deep gratitude the benign interest which Professor Dr. Nazer Singh Professor of History, Punjabi University Patiala took in inducing me into research and placing me in the hands of one of the prominent historians of this region. I am equally indebted to some facility members of the history department, H.P. University, Shimla for their usual courtesy and ungrudging help that they extended to me from time to time. I am thankful to a large number of my friends who helped me in my work. Here, I must thank my better half Mr. Sandeep Bhatia, Senior Lecturer in History at D.A.V. College Bathinda for having given me invaluable help and strength at every stage of this thesis preparation. He went through the complete manuscript—the preliminary and also the final draft, made valuable suggestions, gave me encouragement when I needed it and helped me check the type script. In fact, if any error of printing remains in it, he shares the responsibility with me. I am equally thankful to my lovable son Shubham who never disturbed me during the course of my research study.

I take this opportunity of expressing my gratitude to the custodians of Archives of India, New Delhi; Punjab State Archives, Patiala; Archives of Contemporary History of India, Jawaharlal University, New Delhi; National Library, Alipur, Calcutta and such of the libraries as I often visited in search of material.

My thanks are also due to the President of S.S.D. Girls college, Bhatinda for permitting me to carry out the research work for my Ph.D. without which I could not have attained my life long dream of writing a Ph.D. thesis and finally placing this work in the present form in the hands of learned examiners and other seasoned and young scholars. I shall be failing in my duty if I do not express my sincere gratitude to my in-laws and also my brothers and sisters who always inspired and encouraged me when I was in need of it. They stood by my side till the completion of this work.

Savita Rani