ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am grateful and thankful to my guide Prof.(Dr.) Y.R. Haragopala Reddy, Head of the Department of Law, Nagarjuna University, Nagarjuna Nagar, Guntur District, Andhra Pradesh, South India. When I approached him to guide me, he readily accepted my request.

Prof. Y.R. Haragopal Reddy is the guiding spirit behind this thesis. Being a man who is highly interested in the jurisprudence of Human rights and author of the book “Bonded Labour System in India” and contributor of nearly 35 legal articles in the field, he is here, he is there and he is everywhere in this thesis. My guide took active and keen interest right from the stage of choosing the topic till the final page of the thesis was printed. It is my guide who gave the idea and address to me to contact Amnesty International. At his instance only did I devote special attention on American view on Capital Punishment and the march of the law in the United States of America.

In short, but for the active involvement of my guide Prof. Y.R. Haragopal Reddy, this thesis could not have been what it is. For all the efforts of my guide, I thank him profoundly. Apart from being the guide, Prof. Y. R. Haragopala Reddy exhibited great affection and patience in answering my queries and problems. I consider that mere thanking would not be sufficient to express my gratitude to my guide Prof.Y.R. Haragopal Reddy.

I owe my thanks to Prof. (Dr.) D.V.N.Reddy, Dean, Faculty of Law, Nagarjuna University, Nagarjuna Nagar, Guntur District, Andhra Pradesh, South India, for his fatherly affection and encouragement to me throughout. In view of my being his student since the days of my bachelor degree in law, Prof. D.V.N. Reddy took special interest in the progress of my thesis and went to the extent of presenting a text book written by him to understand as to how to prepare a doctoral thesis.

Dr. John Caroll, visiting Professor to Andhra University, Waltair, Andhra Pradesh, South India, was the person who supplied me with the list of leading cases delivered by the United States Supreme Court on Capital Punishment, which served as basic ground for me to survey the development of Capital Punishment jurisprudence in America. I thank him for his great help to me in respect of American Law.

I will be failing in my duty, if I do not thank Judge Lourdes G. Baird, District Judge, Central District of California, U.S.A. who, when I contacted her, readily agreed to pass on latest material on Capital Punishment and its development in U.S.A. and standing by her promise by sending necessary material promptly. My discussion about American case Law from the year 1990 onwards is largely based upon the material supplied by Judge Baird. I acknowledge my grateful thanks to her on this count.

I thank Mr. Ch. Haribabu, Senior Assistant, U.G.C. Section, Nagarjuna University, Nagarjuna Nagar, Andhra Pradesh, South India for the encouragement, help and his affection towards me. He was instrumental in the print out of the synopsis, cover design of this thesis apart from keeping me at ease regarding the printing and binding work of this thesis. I fail in my duty if I do not thank the Chief Librarian, Law Library, Andhra University, Chief Librarian, Main Library, Andhra University, Librarian-in-charge, National Law School of India University, Bangalore, Librarian, Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai, the Staff, Bureau of Police Research and Development, Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, the Staff, National Crime Records Bureau, Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, Mr. Nehra, President, Amnesty International Indian Section, Mr. Natarajan, Editor, Supreme Court Reports, Mr. Arora, Joint Editor, Supreme Court Reports, Staff and Librarian Indian Institute of Law, Librarian and Staff of Supreme Court of India, Librarian and Staff of ICSSR (Indian Council for Social Science Research), Moulali, Clerk, Department of Law, Nagarjuna University. Every one of them, at every stage in one way or the other stood by my side and saw to it I complete this task with ease and comfort. I thank my uncle Mr. P.V.V.Ramana Rao, District and Sessions Judge(Retd.) for taking me to the Editors of Supreme Court Reports and introducing me to the staff of Supreme Court Library. But for the active interest that Sri P.V.S. Madhusudan Rao, Deputy Director, Department of Survey and Settlement, Government of Andhra Pradesh, the printing of the thesis could not have been achieved so neatly in so short a time. His interest in the project was not profession but personal. I should be and I am grateful to Sri P.V.S.Madhusudan Rao for the major role played by him in the printing and binding of this thesis.

Last but not least, my heartful thanks to my friend, philosopher and guide who fortunately happened to be my husband also, Mr. K.G. Shankar, District and Sessions Judge for his co-operation not only in academic side but also in the home front. I once again thank each and every one who made my target possible.
