ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

After long years of work, I have now satisfaction of arriving at the concluding stage of my research work. I am indebted to the Almighty for the mercy He has shown me, in the form of so many helping guides, well-wishers and friends.

I hasten to acknowledge my indebtedness to my guide Dr. V. Alagappan, Professor and Head of the Department of Commerce, Madurai Kamaraj University. Amid all his unremitting busy schedule, he found the time to help me along with my research project with untiring patience and unsagging energy. From my days as a post-graduate student under him I have found in him a stern and wish guide of exacting standards balanced by a compassionate willingness to help. I do not exaggerate at all when I acknowledge that without his paternal help and encouragement, advice and counselling, this project would never have arrived at this level of completion. It has been a privilege and a pleasure and an educative experience to work under him on this research project.

The work of a part-time researcher working in a college is often dependent on the encouragement and support provided by the administration and the management of the institution in which he works. I am lucky to have had the patronage of Mr. M. Vijayaraghvan, Secretary, and the Management, of the Mannar Thirumalai Naicker College, Madurai for their moral support and encouragement.

According to the ancient adage, student-explorer learns a quarter of all that he has to learn from his fellow students. I have had the unstinting support and encouragement of my colleagues in the college. Dr. S. Venkateswaran, Associate Professor of Commerce, Mannar Thirumalai Naicker College, helped me in exploring the world of statistics involved in my research. He made the daunting work an enjoyable experience. He enabled me in applying complicated statistical and mathematical tools to reduce the masses of data I had collected to meaningfully and enlightening permutations and combinations.
I also record my hearty sense of gratitude to Dr. R. Sannasi, Associate Professor and Head of the Department of Economics, Mannar Thirumalai Naicker College, for his scholarly suggestions and words of encouragement at every crucial stage in the preparation of this work. I take the opportunity to acknowledge here the generous help of all my friends and colleagues who helped me in negotiating the nuances of my project.

I have reserved for the end the sweetest of my duties: my loving acknowledgement of the inspiration and moral guidance I have derived from my grandfathers Mr. S. P. Sangama Naicker and Mr. V. S. Sendram Naicker, my father Mr. S. Seenivasan, my wife Mrs. R. Madhavi, and my son Mr. R. Ramkumar. My grandfathers who passed away many years ago continues to be a living force of inspiration for me, and but for the patience and encouragement of my family, I could never have found the time and the energy for this work.
