ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

To work on a doctoral thesis and see it through to the end is definitely a labour of love, but one that is variously arduous and trying, difficult and confusing, vexing and perplexing, and often agonising. My own work would have been all these much more but for the helping hand of a large number of persons, whom I wish to especially remember through this acknowledgment.

First of all, I must express my gratitude to my Research Guide, Prof. P A Rego of the Department of Economics at Mangalore University. A distinguished scholar in his own right, Dr Rego has been an ideal guide – critical, yet caring, a hard task master, yet very supportive – and I owe more to him than mere words can express.

I must acknowledge the help and support I received from Prof. K M Kaverappa, Hon’ble Vice-Chancellor, Mangalore University, who has been kind and encouraging. I owe a lot to him.

I am extremely grateful to Dr K Sundar Naik, IFS, Registrar, Mangalore University, for constantly encouraging me to pursue my Doctoral research. I must also remember the Registrar Evaluation and his staff for their help at various stages of my work.

The Department of Economics has been a second home to me, and I must thank Prof. Vishwanatha, Chairman, and all the faculty – Prof. G V Joshi, Dr. Jayasheela, Dr. Arabi, and others – for their sustained interest in my work and their consistent support.
To the Librarian, Deputy Librarian and staff of the Mangalore University Library, I must say thanks for their professionalism and helpful attitude, which gave a fillip to my work.

Prof P S Yadapadithaya has been of great help to me. The discussions I have had with him have been fruitful in doing my research and writing my thesis. His guidance has been important to me, and I must thank him with all my heart.

In the same breath, I must mention the help I received from Dr Sripathi Kalluraya P. My task became so much easier for me because of his expertise and his readiness to help. I remain grateful to him.

I must remember with affection all my erstwhile colleagues from the Commerce and Management faculties — Prof T Mallikarjunappa, Prof A Raghuram, Prof T N Sreedhara, Prof Mustiary Begum, Prof Yashwant Dongre, and Dr Kusumakara Hebbar — with whom I have continued to interact and hold useful discussions while on my many visits to the campus. A special word of affection to my colleagues in other disciplines, Prof T P M Pakkala, Prof K R Chandrashekhar, and Dr Ravishankar Rao, who have been of unfailing help and support.

And, of course the stalwarts, Prof S N Hegde, Prof Jayagopal Uchil, and Prof B A Viveka Rai, who were with me and gave me their support and their blessings. I remain indebted to them.

Mr Dinesh Kumar Alva, now President of the Mangalore Academy of Professional Studies, is an old friend who was instrumental in my taking up... my research work. It was he who cast my doubts aside and made me believe that I could do it despite my branching out into public administration. His abiding affection for me has been a great source of strength.

I wish to mention Mr. Naveen Moral and his team, who helped me in conducting my field survey. Their capacity for hard work and the dedication they brought to their job helped me generate data that are field-tested and reliable. I thank them for their help.

I must acknowledge my indebtedness to my superiors, colleagues and friends in the administrative services of the state. I must say a special word of thanks to Shri R. B. Agawane, IAS, Principal Secretary to Government, Dept of Social Welfare, Govt of Karnataka, for his encouragement and understanding. Shri V. P. Baligar, IAS, Principal Secretary to Government, Department of Infrastructure, Government of Karnataka, first permitted me to do my research when I worked under him at RD & PR. Both of them have always been a source of inspiration for me, and I thank them for that.

Shri. K. Jairaj, IAS, Principal Secretary to Government, Dept of RD & PR, Govt of Karnataka, has been of constant support to me, and I thank him profusely. Similarly, my thanks go out to the Commissioner, Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike, and the Commissioner, Karnataka State Slum Clearance Board, and their officers and staff, for facilitating my work in their archives, and sharing their experience with me, all of which have been invaluable to me. I must add here my sense of indebtedness to my steadfast friends Shri M. G. Renukananda, Shri V. P. Ikkeri, Shri Mohan Madhav Prabhu, Shri Abhaya Hegde, Shri Mohan Bangera, Shri Sunil
Achar, and Shri Madhusudan Bhat whose help has been inspiring and invaluable

I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to Sri Yogendra Tripathi, IAS, Secretary to Government, Finance Dept, GOK, Sri G.S Narayanaswmy, I A.S., Commissioner, KHB, GOK; Shri B P Kaniram IAS, and Shri K A Thippetswamy, State Information Commissioner for the immense help they rendered willingly in several ways

I express my heartiest regards and gratitude to Sri Kempaiah, IPS, IGP, KSRP and Shri Om Prakash, IPS, Director of Police Academy for extending me continuous moral support and encouragement

Speaking of my chosen field of professional work, I must acknowledge the fruits of my interaction with the officers and staff of the D. Devaraj Urs Backward Classes Development Corporation Ltd I have become stronger and more resolute since I assumed charge at the Corporation, and I must say that has had a surprisingly positive impact on my research work I thank all of them heartily

When one is done with the world, one returns to one’s family I have been lucky in having a very supportive family My parents, Mr B S Nagappa and Mrs Sumithra Nagappa, have given me their unconditional love Their faith in me has seen me through life, and I have grown in their footsteps They have given me a sense of values, and everything I am today I owe to them That my doctoral work has been done owes much to them, and hence I dedicate it to them, with my respectful pranams
My sister Mrs K N Sharath Adish, her husband Mr K Adish and their children Mona and Sonu, my second sister Mrs K N Asha Kiran Narayan, her husband Mr S D Narayan and their daughter, Sindhu, and my brother, Mr. K N Ajith, his wife Mrs Reshma Ajith and their daughter, Honey – have always amazed me with their cheerful enthusiasm and their love for me. I remain in their debt forever.

Finally, but in no way the least, I must acknowledge my wife, Mrs Latha V Prakash, who cheerfully compelled me to burn the midnight oil, without which I could never have completed my work. And how I can I forget my two endearing children, V N Abhishek and V N Akanksh, who patiently endured the absence of their father, so that he could complete his work. They have contributed to my work in more ways than I can mention, and my heart goes out to them.
