Acknowledgement

First and foremost, it is to Dr. R. E. Amritkar that I owe most of my academic training during the period of my research work. Under his guidance I endeavored to learn three essentials for doing research: To define a problem precisely and remain focused onto it till the end; To supplement reading with adequate amount of thinking; and, Not to compromise on the clarity and simplicity during presentation.

Dr. A. D. Gangal and Dr. N. M. Gupte, through their care and affection, have immensely enriched my knowledge and experience. I must mention the vast collection of books and other literature, on almost every scientific topic under the sun, that lines up Dr. Gangal’s office and has been of a huge benefit to us all. Prof. D. Stauffer deserves my gratitude for being patient and forthcoming with answers and helpful suggestions to all of my queries. I’m grateful to Prof. D. G. Kanhere for making the university’s Internet facility available to me. Dr. B. Dey has also been helpful in many different ways.

Prof. S. B. Ogale, Prof. P. L. Kanitkar, and Prof. A. W. Joshi, as the succeeding Head of the Department of Physics during the period of my stay in the department, have generously extended all kinds of infrastructural facilities to me; I’m grateful to them all. Let me also acknowledge the help provided by the non-teaching staff.

Some of the most treasured moments of my stay in Pune have been associated with my innumerable friends. I’m always learning new things while discussing with Kiran, the guy who thinks in nonintegers. Also there are Ashutosh and Uday, my spiritual partners. And of course, the redoubtable ‘NLD group’ which consists, Kiran and Ashutosh apart, of such budding chaologists as Gauri, Sagar, Nandini, Gade, Jolly, Trush, Anil, Collins and Abhay. Sagar has also doubled up as our computer troubleshooter, and Collins as the proof-editor of this thesis. Mention must also be made of (late) Pande, Nandy, Abhijat, Puskar, Sane, Sudip, Dhananjay, Raja, Tunna, Dr. Ajay Singh, Vijay, Soma, Soumya, Bijoy, Mihir, Nimish, Ajeeta, Shiva, Avinash, Sancho, Sahu, Sridhar, Mahesh and all others, for adding many a colorful shade at various stages of my life and work in Pune.

Love and affection of my parents, to whom I dedicate this thesis, and of my brother and sister–in–law remain a constant source of strength to me.

Finally, I acknowledge University Grants Commission for financial support.
