Study of economics attracted me to acquire further understanding in the domain of regional analysis. I chose it as the theme of my research work leading to the degree of Ph.D. As I had rightly anticipated this work provided me an opportunity to peep into a variety of issues, interrelated with a variety of diverse patterns of socio-economic fabric of the states. This journey took me to various unknown confines of the knowledge in this subject. During the course of the research work, most of the time I found the task very interesting and at the same time challenging too.

First of all, I want to lay everything at the lotus-feet of Almighty whose burning inspiration has motivated me to complete my work. I am thankful to my supervisor and to the faculty members of the institute. My deepest feelings of gratitude are for Dr. Renu Verma who constantly inspired, fostered and channelized my efforts in the right direction.

I owe a lot of thanks to the authorities of Banasthali Vidyapith, Vice Chancellor Prof. Aditiya Shastri and Prof. Siddharth Shastri, Vice President, my teacher and Dean, Social Sciences, for providing me the opportunity for this deliberation. I would also like to thank all the faculty members of Economics department.

I am grateful to Prof. Prabhat Agarwal (Associate Professor, Delhi University) not only for taking keen interest in the progress of my work at each stage but also for his kind support in imparting me knowledge about the statistical techniques of the work. I am highly grateful to Prof. Dilip Saikia (Assistant Professor in Economics in the Department of Commerce, Darrang College, Tezpur, Assam), for providing me right direction in the understanding of statistical tools. I am also very thankful to Prof. C.P. Gupta (Head of FMS, Delhi University, New Delhi), Prof. Pankaj Gupta (Jamia Islamia University, New Delhi), Prof. Deepak Khanna (NIIT, Neemrana, Rajasthan), Prof. Kanta Ahuja (Rajasthan University, Jaipur), Prof. Ramkrashinachari (J.K. Business School, Gurgaon), Prof. Rajesh
Kothari (Rajasthan University, Jaipur) and definitely not to be forgotten Prof. Sachin Sharma (Ministry of Foreign Trade and Affaires, New Delhi) for their valuable guidance and constitutive directions during the course of the study.

From the bottom of my heart, I express my deep reverence and cordial regards to my affectionate parents and parents in law for their infinite blessings and overwhelming love which kept me going. I would like to give special thanks to my endearing sisters and my brothers in law- a consortium for their invaluable moral support and always boosting me to move on and on until the completion of thesis with their unflinching and unasked for assistance, interspersed with their vast knowledge.

I want to say a big thanks to my younger brother Amit Vats, without whose incisively analytical clarity and sober checks, the vast landscape of the present theme would not have taken its present shape.

Let me also confess that my complaisant consort Prashant Sharma deserves at least half of the credit in this endeavour who kept infusing me relentlessly with persistent self-reliance and encouragement to move steadily towards the accomplishment of this aim and kept cheering me through this strenuous, intricate and seemingly interminable expedition.

I am also grateful to the members of the staff of the Central Library, Banasthali, Nehru Memorial Library, New Delhi, National Institute of Public Finance and Practices, Library (Qutub Enclave, New Delhi), Institute of Management Technology (IMT, Ghaziabad) and Rajasthan University (Jaipur) Library. I got very warm treatment from the side of the staff members which helped me a lot in searching my stuff material for my work.

I am solely responsible for all the limitations this work carries.
