ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The University of Poona granted me permission to submit a thesis without a guide, in the absence of a recognised guide in Agricultural Extension and Rural Sociology at Poona. I am grateful to the University authorities for the same.

Although according to the University regulations I could not have an official guide, this thesis work does not go without guidance. In fact, Dr. C.P. Loomis, Research Professor, Michigan State University and at present the Consultant in The Ford Foundation at Hyderabad, guided and encouraged me in writing this thesis using his P.A.S model. He has also gone through the draft of the thesis and made helpful suggestions. I am very much indebted to him.
