ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This is god finest grace on me that today I am the anvil of achieving the highest degree of my life that one day was just a dream for me and my family. But their dream could never be fulfilled were without the sincere help of a number of people distinguished educationists of who Head of Department of Economics of Pune University Prof. Dr. Dhanmanjini Sathe stands prime for personalized and in depth attentions forward my project.

Nothing could ever commence or conclude without the presence of my dear guide Prof. Dr. Malika. B. Mistry to these honors. I heartily thank her for all the valuable guidance.

I would like to express my greatest appreciation to University of Pune, India for giving me the opportunity to continue the course of this thesis here. I extend my appreciation to administrative staff of Pune University.

Inspiration always comes from near and dear ones for which I am so fortunate that right from my Parents (Yousofali & Nasrin), my Sisters (Fatimeh & Fahimeh), my brothers (Mohammadreza & Alireza) and my brothers-in-law (Yadollah & Alireza) and especially my older brother (Mohammadreza) and my younger sister (Fahimeh) for their contribution and hard earned money and their spouses were all the strength of what I am today for which my words of thanks stand insufficient. God bless all of them.
I would like to thanks to Mr. Mirza Hasan Askari master of commerce from Pune University of India for his help and kindest support.

My sincere thanks and gratitude to Mrs. Marina D’Mello former principle of St. Mary’s Junior College of education for her help and support me in improving English which this thesis is a result of devotion from her.

I would like to thanks to Mr. Mehyar Baghery master of economics from Shahid Beheshti University of Iran for his priceless and kind support to me in economic area.

Last but not the least, writing of this thesis was greatest task of my life, a mission that I was able to accomplish with honor and satisfaction, leading me towards my Doctorate. What I only miss is the presence of my revered grandmother who instrumental in inducing me to reach to this esteemed statues, one who would be most happy if she was alive.
