ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all, I would like to record my profound sense of gratitude to my supervisor and Chairperson of the Centre for East Asian Studies (SIS) JNU, Professor K.V. Kesavan for his constant guidance, support and encouragement in the completion of the thesis. During the preparation of the thesis, he has generously spared his valuable time to go through my drafts and make necessary corrections. He has also given me valuable suggestions to enrich the contents of the thesis. Needless to state that without his co-operation and guidance, this thesis would not have been completed in time. I owe a lot to him and I am indebted for all the help he has done for me.

I am grateful to Professor Goto Akira, Professor of History of West Asia, Institute of Oriental Culture, University of Tokyo, who was my academic adviser during my field trip in Japan. I am thankful to him for his guidance and the trouble he took to introduce me to the officials of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, National Diet Library, Japan Foundation Library, Institute of Social Science Library, International House of Japan Library and the libraries of various other institutions related to the Middle East Studies in Tokyo. My sincere thanks are due to Ms. Marumi Kato of Tokyo University of Foreign Studies for providing me accommodation.

I also express my thanks to Ms Keiko Higuchi and Ms. Kyoko Yamada of International House of Japan Library and Ms Chieko Okuizumi and Naoko Wakia of Japan Foundation Library.

I am grateful to Mr. Ken Mukai, Assistant Director, First Middle East Division, Middle East and African Affairs Bureau, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Government of Japan, for providing me with the necessary primary sources related to my study.

Mr. Koji Nishimura, Assistant Director, Research and Programming Division, Economic Cooperation Bureau, Ministry of Foreign Affairs Government of Japan, Tokyo, provided me with many primary sources related to Japan’s economic relations with the Middle East. I express my sincere thanks to him.

I also owe my thanks to Mr. Isamu Nakashima of the Middle East Institute of Japan, for his valuable suggestions and comments during my discussion with him on the subject.

My thanks are due to Maj. Gen (Rtd.) Hiroshi Shimzu, Research Associate, Research Institute for Peace and Security, Tokyo for his scholarly guidance and suggestions on the subject.

I express my gratitude to Professor Manabu Shimizu, Faculty of International Studies, Utsunomiya University, Japan, for coming over to Tokyo to meet me as per my request. He gave me a lot of first hand information on the subject. His guidance on the subject also helped me a lot to complete this work. I am thankful to him.

My thanks are also due to the former Dean, School of International Studies, JNU, Professor G.P. Deshpande, and the present Dean Professor Sandeep Das, for granting me a field study trip to Japan for the completion of my work.

I am also grateful to to Rev. Oikawa Sensei, Rissho University Tokyo Dr. Muni Ratnam, Ms. Sreedevi Reddy and Dr. Sreenivasa Chakravarty for making my stay comfortable in Japan.
I am thankful to Mr. Eyal Rak, Head, Academic and Scientific Affairs & Director, Israel Cultural Centre, Embassy of Israel, New Delhi and Mr. M.H. Mozafari, Director and Cultural Attache, Embassy of Iran Embassy, New Delhi for their help in collecting source materials for the thesis.

I am also grateful to Dr. S Jayashankar, Deputy Chief of Mission, Indian Embassy in Tokyo and other embassy staff for providing assistance during my stay in Japan. I am thankful to my friend Mr. G S Pillai for preparing the draft of the thesis. My thanks are also due to Dr. Bansidhar Pradhan, Editor, SIS, and Dr. Ram Singh Saini, Documentation Officer, S.I.S., for making available the necessary U.N. Documents.

I also express my thanks to Mr. Laxman Negi and Mr. Mahesh Kumar of Sanjay Photostat, SIS for their help in preparing the final form of the thesis.
