ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all, I would like to thank my supervisor Professor Rabindra Nath Bhattacharyya without whom this study would not have been possible. His constant support and guidance helped me overcome the difficulties while conducting the study. I am forever grateful to him.

I would like to thank Professor Sarmila Banerjee of the Department of Economics of University of Calcutta for giving me extremely useful suggestions during the pre-submission seminar of my PhD thesis. I am also grateful to her for always providing a helping hand when in difficulty during my research.

Professor Sankar Bhaumik again from the Department of Economics of University of Calcutta helped me by providing valuable advice during my pre-submission seminar. I am thankful to him.

I am thankful to all the faculty members of the Department of Economics of Calcutta University, especially my teachers who provided me with valuable suggestions during my PhD pre-submission seminar.

I am grateful to Saswati Chowdhury, Officer in the State Water Investigation Directorate (SWID) for providing me with official data and various reports on Minor Irrigation in West Bengal.

My students at Visva Bharati, Tapas Pal and Sreejit Mukherjee gave me much needed helping hand to collect data during my field survey. Dr. Sugata Sen helped me in completing a part of my survey in West Midnapore district. Susnata Ganguly and Amit Basu helped me in data entry. I am grateful to all of them.

My gratitude goes out to University Grants Commission (UGC) for sanctioning a Minor Research project related to my doctoral research work.

I am thankful to my colleagues in the Department of Economics at Visva Bharati and the administration of Visva Bharati for permitting me a study leave to complete my research.

Finally, it would have been impossible to complete the research without the love and support of my family. My wife always helped me and was on constant vigil over the time I give to studies. My parents not only provided their house for my research but gave me constant inspiration. This dissertation is dedicated to them.
