ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

An ocean is defined, not only by its density or its vastness but most importantly by its shore upon which the waves fall back, similarly throughout my dissertation many a time I have stumbled and fallen back upon my revered and beloved guide—R.C Mam (Prof. Roma Chakraborty). In the process of my PhD. work she has also guided me with practical philosophy of life. Many impediments, obstructions I had faced during this tenure; without her inspiration it was not possible for me to work even amidst such constraints. She is my guide of PhD. over and above that; she would remain my guide of life. My heartiest thanks to you Mam!

I also owe my gratitude to all teachers of the Department of Philosophy in the University of Calcutta who have always believed in me and have supported me immensely. U.C Mam, S.B Mam, N.B Mam, S.R.B Sir and P.K.S Sir—my special thanks to you all!

My heartiest thanks go to my teachers of school who have disciplined me to reach this stage and also to my teachers of college who have taught me to love philosophy; they are (Late M.G Mam, M.D Mam, S.D.G Mam and K.D.G Mam).

My sincere thanks to all my colleagues and especially to my Department of Women’s Christian College who have stood by me as family. I am grateful to my Principal Dr. Ajanta Paul who granted me a study leave as soon as I approached to her, thereby cooperating me in my academics and would also like to thank all the staffs at office who co-operated with me in my absence. In this regard I would also like to thank UGC for sanctioning F.D.P leave for my studies. Nevertheless I would thank my lovely students who waited patiently for my return.

I would take this opportunity to thank the Department of Philosophy Jadavpur University who let me talk on terrorism for a couple of months thereby enlightening me on the topic. My special thanks to Arundhuti di and M.C Mam. I am also grateful to Prof. Rita Gupta (Ex-Prof. of Visva Bharati University) to help me out with my concluding chapter and Prof. Kumar Mitra (Ex-Prof. of RBU) for helping me out with my appendix.
Thanks to the books, their authors, technological support (internet) and libraries (especially Ramakrishna Mission Institute of Culture) to act as a source of knowledge for my thesis.

I thank Rana da, Sriparna di, Manas babu, Santana di who have helped me type and print my thesis. I thank all those who have helped me in the trivial but very important technicalities of my thesis (such as binding, Xeroxing etc.) I thank those who have fed me days in and out and helped me to commute to places for my work. I thank my attendants to take care of my domestic fronts.

My deepest thanks to all my elders, family, friends, relatives, and well wishers for being by me (a special mention to my parents without whom this thesis was not possible). I would also like to owe my sincere feelings to my husband whose sacrifice behind my thesis would remain as a milestone. Thanks to my brother and also to my two year old son for sacrificing his mom many a time when he needed. Last but not least I owe my overwhelming gratitude to all Lords of all religions, my Gurus, my ancestors and the almighty—without whose blessings this would have remained an incomplete task.

My thesis is dedicated to Humanity at large.
